Directors of Third Term Drive Are Described as Still Uncertain Whether to Put the President Formally Into Nomination and the Vice Presidential Problem, on the Surface at Least, is no Nearer Solution Than Before; Thousands of Empty Seats Spread Before Speakers at Opening Today

ROUSING SPEECH DELIVERED BY THE DIRECTOR OF WOMEN'S DIVISION DRAWS DEMONSTRATION

BY W. B. RAGSDALE
Chicago Stadium, July 16.—(P)—A member of President Roosevelt's cabinet openly forecast his nomination for a third term today while Democratic delegates pushed their convention through more gusts of oratory before the actual balloting begins Thursday.

Secretary of Labor Perkins told a breakfast gathering of several thousand women that "we are about to break tradition and nominate a man for a third term." When the burst of applause subsided, the labor secretary added:

"We don't do this lightly. There is not a woman in this room who doesn't realize the seriousness of breaking tradition."

This breakfast of the Federation of Illinois Democratic Women's Clubs was held before Speaker William B. Bankhead, the temporary chairman and keynote, called the delegates to order to hear speeches by Mrs. Thomas F. McAllister, director of the women's division of the Democratic national committee, and by Representative Arthur Mitchell of Chicago, only negative congressman.

Delegates moved into the big convention hall with their ears keenly attuned for any sound from the White House—but such as came to them emerged only through cabinet members or administration subordinates.

President Roosevelt talked by telephone for five minutes with Secretary Hopkins, and Hopkins conferred with Senator Byrnes (D-SC), but neither would disclose what they had discussed.

Directors of the third term drive were described as still uncertain whether to put the president formally into nomination and the vice presidential problem, on the surface at least, was no nearer solution than it had been yesterday.

Thousands of empty seats were spread out before the speaker's stand when Bankhead rapped for order at 11:07 a. m. (CST). Less than half of the delegates appeared to be in their red seats on the stadium floor, while only thin ribbons of black showed up against the broad belts of red chairs in the triple-tiered galleries.

The invocation was pronounced by Bishop Reverdy C. Ransom of Wilberforce University, a negro, who prayed for "peace in our country and throughout the world."

Eddie Howard, a middle western radio singer, led the audience in singing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Mrs. McAllister, in a summary frock and a white hat, said she spoke for the Democratic women of the country.

"As Democrats, we are opposed to war, for reaction thrives on war," she said. "As women, we are opposed to war, for war threatens our fathers and our brothers, our husbands and our children."

Mrs. McAllister said women "trust in the leadership" of President Roosevelt because it had been demonstrated time and again as right.

A steady rustle of new arrivals filled the hall as she spoke.

Applause rang out when she said "We know that President Roosevelt has been right, time after time, year after year, in his judgment of foreign affairs."

Another burst of cheering welcomed her declaration that the roots of national defense were strong and united, "because of the leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

"The most dangerous fifth column in any country is social and economic injustice," Mrs. McAllister said.

The hall rang with applause again when she praised Mrs. Roosevelt in these words:

"As Democrats we salute a true Democrat, a beloved friend and a great American, Eleanor Roosevelt."

The keynote speech of Bankhead and a "farewell" address by National Chairman James A. Farley highlighted the first major convention session last night at the big, flag-draped Chicago stadium.

Farley was given a tumultuous ovation when he urged the party workers to "give our successors and the new national party organization the same support that was

PRESIDENT HAS TALK WITH HIS CONTACT MAN

Washington, July 16.—(P)—President Roosevelt talked by telephone today for five minutes with Secretary of Commerce Hopkins, who has been described by some in Chicago as the chief executive's contact man at the Democratic national convention.

The account of the conversation given to newsmen, however, contributed nothing to the questions in their minds about the third term situation.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, who was with the president when the Hopkins call came through, reported that "the conversation was all from the other end" and he could not hear it. Asked whether he heard the word "reclamation" used, Early replied that "all I could hear was loud laughter."

With each passing minute seemingly bringing a third term nomination closer, reporters asked whether Mr. Roosevelt had changed his mind about going to Chicago. Early told them he did not "see a chance" that any of them would get a trip to Chicago with the president.

Mr. Roosevelt reserved nearly two hours in the middle of the day for his lightening radio to convention activities and at the same time work on his mail.

The extent and purpose of Mr. Roosevelt's long-distance participation in convention affairs was somewhat obscure, but it served to move Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina well into the foreground of political conjecture here.

NAZI RAIDS TAPER OFF

By the Associated Press
An apparent "trial balloon" peace offer to Britain by the Axis powers—with an alternative threat of a full-scale assault on the British Isles—was floated by diplomatic circles in Rome today.

Simultaneously, the international picture was darkened by the reported resignation of the Japanese cabinet headed by Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai. It appeared likely the Yonai cabinet would be succeeded by a group favoring stronger action against western powers in the Orient, including the United States.

This report coincided with the departure of strong forces of the United States battle fleet from Pearl Harbor, Hawaii—numbering two battleships, 12 cruisers, the aircraft carrier Enterprise and a powerful array of destroyers.

While the Navy Department maintained silence, speculation was aroused that the American men of war may be steaming to patrol British and French Isles in the South Pacific.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in a broadcast Sunday night, scornfully rejected in advance any axis suggestion of a peace parley.

Nazis said Germany is ready to strike when Hitler gives the word and that a titanic blow was an "inevitable necessity" because "Churchill insisted on fighting to a finish."

Informed German quarters held that British stubbornness would require the latter alternative and prepare for attack had been prepared "with German thoroughness" from Norway to the French Atlantic coast.

Phillips was also named in 20 other indictments charging misdemeanors in "setting up, establishing and maintaining" slot machines in 20 clubs in the county.

By the Associated Press
Grenoble, France, July 16.—Le Petit Dauphinois said today that foreign diplomatic quarters in Switzerland had heard that a projected attack on England by 600,000 Germans had been delayed because of differences in the High Command, but that the attack may be launched Friday night.

The Germans have assembled hundreds of ships for the attack, the newspaper said in a dispatch from Bern.

According to Le Petit Dauphinois, the commander-in-chief of the German army and other generals opposed the plan of attack first set for July 9-10 because they thought it too dangerous to the attackers in its original form.

The ships, according to the newspaper, range from German and captured French, Belgian and Dutch freighters and passenger ships to fishing smacks and barges to be towed by tugs.

They are lying along the coast from Brest, France, to Bergen, Norway, the paper added.

The fleet's escort of light gunboats, submarines and fighting planes, to be preceded by mine sweepers and waves of bombers, were ready when one group of generals headed by General Walter Von Brauchitsch, commander-in-chief of the German army, protested that it was too dangerous, the paper said.

A modified plan of the attack may be launched Friday night, the paper said.

The dispatch said that General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the general staff, defended the original plan before Hitler, but the Fuehrer nevertheless delayed the attack to consider the objections.

SPEECH IS EXPECTED

BY RICHARD G. MANSROCK
Associated Press Foreign Writer
Rome, July 16.—(P)—Diplomatic circles heard today that Adolf Hitler was preparing to make a last three-point offer to Great Britain for a war settlement which would spare the British Isles from devastating attack.

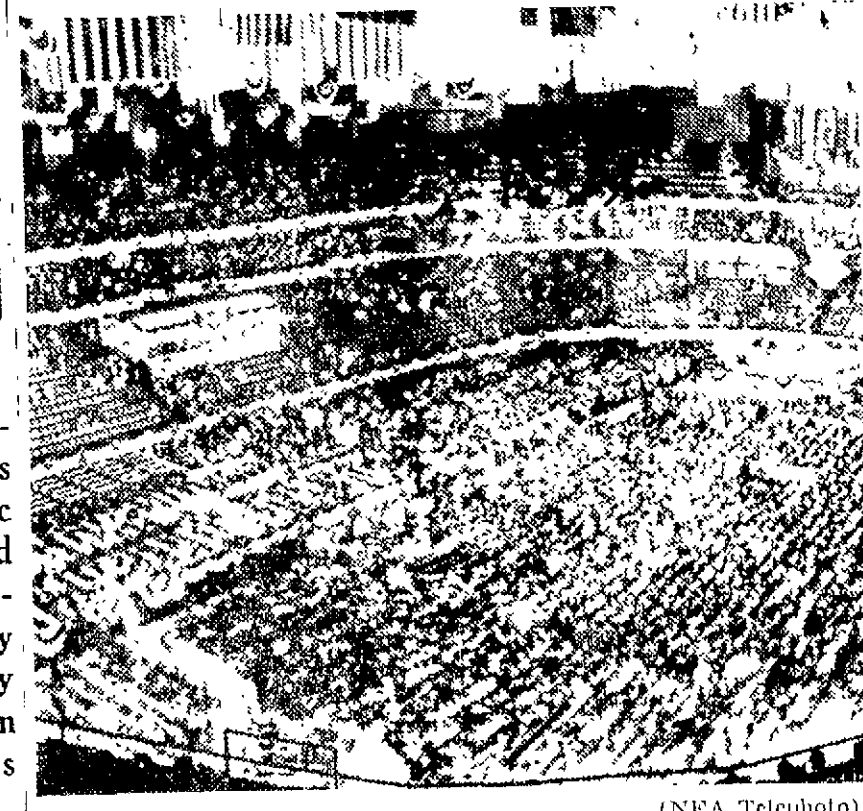

Diplomatic reports from Berlin indicated that Hitler might make an offer to Britain in a speech before the Reichstag within the next few days.

Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, is planning tentatively to go to Berlin before Hitler speaks to confer with the Germans on terms as Premier Mussolini's representative, diplomatic sources said.

Private advice from Berlin indicated that Hitler probably would offer Britain plans for:

1. A European settlement of continental affairs;
2. Return to Germany of those colonies taken from her by the evacuation scheme continues, however; So far 50,000 have applied to go to Canada and 20,000 to the United States.

LEAN TOWARD WALLACE FOR SECOND PLACE

BY JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

Chicago, July 16.—(P)—A cautiously-expressed preference for Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, for the vice presidential nomination appeared today in the Pennsylvania delegation to the Democratic national convention.

"I have said all along," State Chairman Meredith Meyers commented, "that it looked like Wallace," but "I am not saying it's going to be that way."

Meyers acknowledged the existence of sentiment for Governor Lloyd Stark of Missouri, for vice president, attributed principally to the work of State Senator John Rice, long a personal friend of Stark.

Luther Hart, Senator Guffey's manager, also has expressed a recognition of sentiment for Wallace, but likewise was careful to preclude an interpretation of his remarks as an expression of personal preference. Hart said:

Guffey himself was even more cautious. He listed at least a half dozen "acceptables" among them Wallace, two other cabinet officers and some members of the senate.

Guffey's initial list did not include Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator. Asked about that, Guffey said it was a "tentative oversight."

Plans for Pennsylvania's second caucus were indefinite. "There's nothing to discuss about," Meyers said.

Yesterday the delegates were informed that the vice presidential place was wide open.

London, July 16.—(P)—Official announcement that the government had postponed its plan to transfer British children to the United States was made in Commons today and precipitated protests by Laborites that thousands of children from wealthy homes were being put overseas while those of the poor were left to remain and face war conditions.

One Laborite said he was convinced that the whole plan had been merely a "concealment" to get the children of wealthy parents out of the country ahead of the threatened German bombing.

The announcement, authorized by Laborites, was made by Clement Attlee, Prime Minister of Great Britain, in the House of Commons.

Registration of children for the evacuation scheme continues, however. So far 50,000 have applied to go to Canada and 20,000 to the United States.

Attlee said private transfers of children would not be stopped, but that the risks involved must be

In Deluge of Rain, While Thunder and Lightning Rend Skies Above, Grim Rescue Workers Early Today Trundle Out of The Depths of a Bituminous Mine Near Johnstown, Canvas-Covered Victims

BY WILLIAM Associated Press Staff Writer
Sonman, July 16.—(P)—The death toll of an explosion that swept three sections of the Koppers Coal Company in this central Pennsylvania village was fixed at 63 today by company officials.

Rescue workers who mched their way through passageways filled with deadly gases brought out 62 canvas-wrapped bodies and L. C. Campbell, assistant to the president of the Koppers Company, said one other man missing and known to be dead in the explosion sector.

Among the victims of the explosion Pennsylvania's worst soft coal disaster in 30 years—were Tom Leap and two sons, Melvin and Homer, whose bodies were found side by side in the No. 16 section where 34 met death.

TO PAY SURVIVORS
Portage, July 16.—(P)—Thomas E. Lightfoot, director of Accident Prevention and compensation for Koppers Coal Company, said today approximately $500,000 in insurance and state compensation will be paid survivors of the 63 men killed in the Sonman mine blast. He estimated state compensation of approximately $7,000 for each man and group insurance at $31,500. Efforts will be made to distribute $20,000 to $20,000 to the victims' families today, he said, adding that full settlements will be made as quickly as possible.

Campbell said work lists showed only 84 men were working in the mine at the time of the explosion (about 11:55 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) yesterday, although as many as 1200 are employed at times on three shifts.

Twenty-one escaped the blast 2-000 feet back in the 50-year-old slope mine. Among them was Leslie Steel, a young mine foreman of Windber, who stayed in the pit helping rescue workers for 12 hours while his fear-stricken mother knelt praying on the hillside mine entrance, uncertain whether he was dead or alive.

Most of the victims were suffocated. Some were burned.

The company received an unenviable task today. The death cutting machine set off the blast. Little damage was done to the mine itself.

About 1,200 were employed in the mine in three shifts. The explosion swept through only three sections, however.

Federal and state mine inspectors and volunteer rescue squads rushed to this mining village of 400 population. Sonman is in the southwestern Pennsylvania bituminous field, about 16 miles east of Johnstown, the "flood city."

One rescue worker discovered that a group of 54 miners were holed up in a wooden plank and a brace of wooden planks and put a canvas over it in a vain effort to keep out the deadly gas. But it seeped in around the edges. (Turn to Page Nine)

Throngs of Men, Women and Children Keep Vigil Throughout Night Opening of Shaft

Portage, July 16.—(P)—Throngs of men, women and children who had kept vigil throughout the night at the Sonman mine where 63 were killed in an explosion, thronged today to the streets outside the Portage borough hall, where bodies of the victims were brought.

Many of the women, some with children clutching at their skirts, broke into tears as ambulances rolled up from the mine and the victims. The men, too, gazed at the bodies of the victims with grief.

Inside the first and second floors were filled with the dead, some lying on cots and others on makeshift tables.

Hundreds of persons, heedless of rain and cold, stood on a hillside near the mine in Sonman last night waiting for word of the miners.

Some women knelt in the slag piles and in scattered bits of grass to pray in vain for the safety of their menfolk. Each time the rescue workers came from the mine with a body, sobs shook the clusters of women.

Explosive Issue of Sending Aid to England Confronts Policymakers Tackling Platform

The delegates already had been counseled by Mayor Edward J. Kelly in his welcoming speech to "draft Roosevelt". But Kelly said the president always had turned aside his every suggestion that he run again.

Other leaders or states whose delegations are pledged solidly to Mr. Roosevelt for a third term said they had no more definite word from the White House than did Kelly. They had no instructions from anyone as to what to do.

Nor was there any general agreement by third term advocates over the question of how the president's name should be put formally before the convention—whether to have a regular nominating speech, a delegate arise from the floor in a gesture of spontaneity and propose a third term, or simply let the other candidates be placed in nomination and poll the votes supporting the president. The latter are ample to nominate.

HOT DEBATE ON RULES CHANGES

Chicago, July 16.—(P)—The Democratic convention rules committee, after a hot debate, deferred action on a proposal to reduce the number of delegates from the territories.

The argument developed the same fight between southern and northern states that occurred before the national committee two days ago.

The rules group not only postponed action on the national committee's proposal to add one delegate to each state voting Democratic, but agreed to put off reporting this matter to the convention until after a presidential nominee had been selected. This was done to prevent delay in the convention schedule.

The rules committee also deferred action on a proposal to reduce the number of delegates from the territories.

It agreed on a partial report recommending that the platform committee be represented by a woman from each state as well as a man.

Senators Wheeler, of Indiana, and Pepper, of Florida, advocates of different courses in foreign affairs, served notice that the question would be submitted to the whole convention unless their respective views were incorporated by the platform committee.

Details of the Fuehrer's Last Three-Point Proposal For Peace Are Revealed in Rome

INDICT FOUR IN WASHINGTON CO.

Washington, Pa., July 16.—(P)—Four men, including James C. Bane, former district attorney of Washington county, were indicted last night by a grand jury investigating a slot machine "racket" which a presentment said grossed half a million dollars over a four-year period.

The others indicted were M. J. Powell and William B. McBride, former Washington county detectives, and Albert Phillips of Mt. Pocono and Charlevoix. All were charged with conspiracy in the operation of slot machines.

Phillips was also named in 20 other indictments charging misdemeanors in "setting up, establishing and maintaining" slot machines in 20 clubs in the county.

Special Prosecutor Roy P. Hicks, in charge of the investigation, said the jury also recommended indictments of misconduct in office against Bane, Powell and McBride. (Turn to Page Nine)

KILLED IN EUROPE
Scranton, July 16.—(P)—A cablegram brought to Mr. and Mrs. James Malpass news of the death of their son, David, in an air accident "somewhere in England."

Malpass, a graduate of Scranton Central High school, enlisted in the British Royal Air Force in 1929 and had been a member of a

Newspaper Printed at Grenoble, France, Declares That Foreign Diplomatic Quarters in Switzerland Has Learned That Attack Across Channel May Be Launched Friday Night; 600,000 Men And Hundreds of Ships Assembled

OFFICIAL CIRCLES IN BERLIN TIGHT-LIPPED

By The Associated Press
Grenoble, France, July 16.—Le Petit Dauphinois said today that foreign diplomatic quarters in Switzerland had heard that a projected attack on England by 600,000 Germans had been delayed because of differences in the High Command, but that the attack may be launched Friday night.

The Germans have assembled hundreds of ships for the attack, the newspaper said in a dispatch from Bern.

According to Le Petit Dauphinois, the commander-in-chief of the German army and other generals opposed the plan of attack first set for July 9-10 because they thought it too dangerous to the attackers in its original form.

The ships, according to the newspaper, range from German and captured French, Belgian and Dutch freighters and passenger ships to fishing smacks and barges to be towed by tugs.

They are lying along the coast from Brest, France, to Bergen, Norway, the paper added.

The fleet's escort of light gunboats, submarines and fighting planes, to be preceded by mine sweepers and waves of bombers were ready when one group of generals headed by General Walter Von Brauchitsch, commander-in-chief of the German army, protested that it was too dangerous, the paper said.

A modified plan of the attack may be launched Friday night, the paper said.

The dispatch said that General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the general staff, defended the original plan before Hitler, but the Fuehrer nevertheless delayed the attack to consider the objections.

Count Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, Said to be Planning Tentatively to Go to Germany For Conference on Terms

Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, is planning tentatively to go to Berlin before Hitler speaks to confer with the Germans on terms as Premier Mussolini's representative, diplomatic sources said.

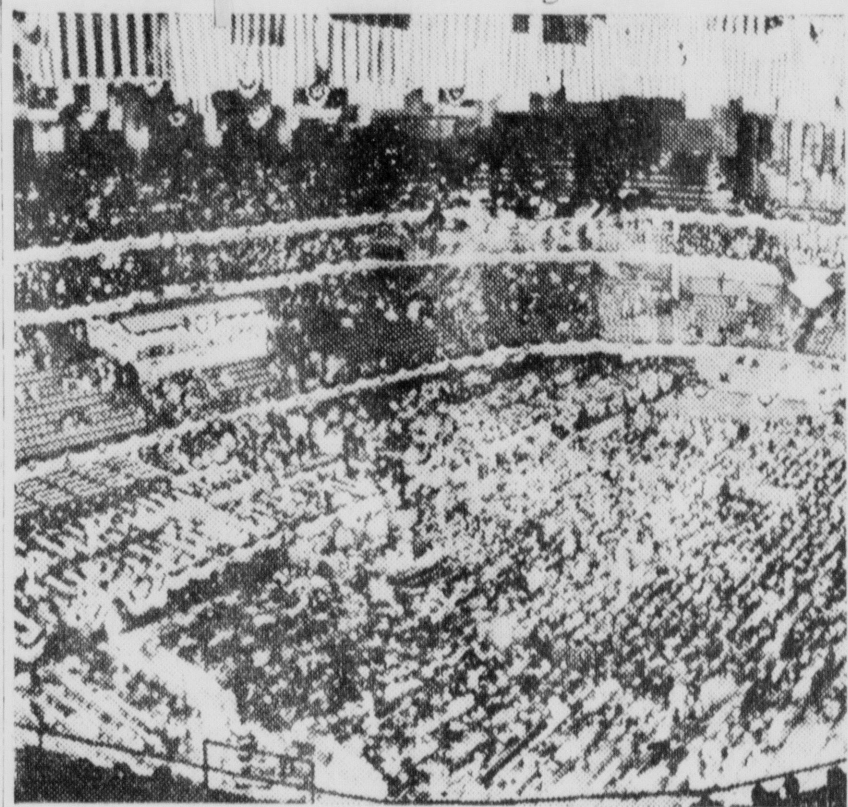

Private advice from Berlin indicated that Hitler probably would offer Britain plans for:

1. A European settlement of continental affairs;

2. Return to Germany of those colonies taken from her by the colonies taken from her by the 3. Economic rehabilitation of Europe.

Britain might be offered the role of mediator between the gold standard countries, including those of the western hemisphere and the

Bids For Russell Field Fence Are Rejected at Meeting of the Board

LEAN TOWARD WALLACE FOR SECOND PLACE

BY JOSEPH A. LOFTUS

Chicago, July 16.—(P)—A cautiously-expressed preference for Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, for the vice presidential nomination appeared today in the Pennsylvania delegation to the Democratic national convention.

"I have said all along," State Chairman Meredith Meyers commented, "that it looked like Wallace," but "I am not saying it's going to be that way."

Meyers acknowledged the existence of sentiment for Governor Lloyd Stark of Missouri, for vice president, attributed principally to the work of State Senator John Rice, long a personal friend of Stark.

Luther Harr, Senator Guffey's manager, also has expressed a recalcitrant sentiment for Wallace, but likewise was careful to preclude an interpretation of his remarks as an expression of personal preference. Harr said delegates were being asked to avoid premature individual commitments to vice presidential possibilities.

Guffey himself was even more cautious. He listed at least a half dozen "acceptables" among them Wallace, two other cabinet officers and some members of the senate.

Guffey's initial list did not include Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator. Asked about that, Guffey said it was a "mental oversight."

Plans for Pennsylvania's second caucus were indefinite. "There's nothing to caucus about," Meyers said.

Yesterday the delegates were informed that the vice presidential place was wide open.

CHILD REFUGEE PLAN IS HALTED

London, July 16.—(P)—Official announcement that the government had postponed its plan to transfer British child refugees to the United States was made in Commons today and precipitated protests by Laborites that thousands of children from wealthy homes were being sent overseas while those of the poor were forced to remain and face war conditions.

One Laborite said he was convinced that "the whole plan had been merely a 'camouflage' to get the children of wealthy parents out of the country ahead of the threatened German blitzkrieg."

The announcement, authoritatively forecast, was made by Clement R. Attlee, Prime Minister Churchill's lieutenant in the House of Commons.

Registration of children under the evacuation scheme continues, however. So far 50,000 have applied to go to Canada and 20,000 to the United States.

Attlee said private transfers of children would not be stopped, but that the risks involved must be

Project is Again Delayed When School Directors Discover Approximate Amount of Money Required is Far Beyond Consideration

NEW PLAN SUGGESTED

The Russell Field fence project was again delayed last night when the school board opened bids, looked at the amounts and rejected all of them.

With the available cash amounting to approximately $5,000, the bids which ranged from $8,000 to $13,000 were beyond consideration and after considerable discussion the board decided to return all certified checks and ask for new specifications from the architect.

Superintendent Rossman was in charge to contact the architect immediately, asking that plans for sheet metal barriers on two sides and on three sides be drawn up and submitted for bids. According to this plan, the board will construct at least two sides of the fence, probably on the east and west, this year and add to it next season. If the price is within the budget range, the south side may also be fenced this season.

The present plan approved by the majority of the members will eventually call for sheet metal barriers on the "flats" on all three sides with a mesh fence on the banks and along Pennsylvania avenue. The mesh portion will be lined with evergreen trees and canvas.

During the coming football season snow fence and canvas, augmented by as much sheet metal fence as can be purchased at present, will be used.

PHILLY COMMITTEE HAS A DEFICIT TOO

Philadelphia, July 16.—(P)—The $20,000 price of unfinished business awaiting the Philadelphia citizens committee, Secretary Walter Allesanroni admits, but: "We'll raise the money even if we have to have another drive for funds."

He said the committee promised $200,000 to the Republican national committee to bring the convention here and is $29,000 short.

Federal and state mine inspectors and volunteer rescue squads rushed to this mining village of 400 population. Sonman is in the southwestern Pennsylvania bituminous field, about 16 miles east of Johnstown, the "flood city."

One rescue worker discovered that a group of 34 miners erected a brattice of wooden planks and put a canvas over it in a vain effort to keep out the deadly gas. But it seeped in around the edges (Turn to Page Nine)

Throng of Men, Women and Children Keep Vigil Throughout Night Opening of Shaft

Portage, July 16.—(P)—Throng of men, women and children, who had kept vigil throughout the night at the Sonman mine, where 63 were killed in an explosion, trekked today to the streets outside the Portage borough hall, where bodies of the victims were brought.

Many of the women—some with children clutching at their skirts—broke into tears as ambulances rolled up hour after hour with the victims. The men stood grim and silent behind the rope barriers that held the crowd from the building's entrances.

Inside, the first and second floors were filled with the dead, some lying on cots and others on makeshift

DEADLIEST EXPLOSION IN DECADE

In Deluge of Rain, While Thunder and Lightning Rend Skies Above, Grim Rescue Workers Early Today Trundle Out of The Depths of a Bituminous Mine Near Johnstown, Canvas-Covered Victims

BY WILLIAM
Associated Press Staff Writer
Sonman, July 16.—(P)—The death toll of an explosion that swept three sections of the Koppers Coal Company in this central Pennsylvania village was fixed at 63 today by company officials.

Rescue workers who inched their way through passageways filled with deadly gases brought out 62 canvas-wrapped bodies and L. C. Campbell, assistant to the president of the Koppers Company, said one other man missing and known to be dead in the explosion sector.

Among the victims of the explosion—Pennsylvania's worst soft coal disaster in 10 years—were Tom Leap and two sons, Melvin and Homer, whose bodies were found side by side in the No. 16 section where 34 met death.

TO PAY SURVIVORS
Portage, July 16.—(P)—Thomas E. Lightfoot, director of Accident Prevention and compensation for Koppers Coal Company, said today approximately $500,000 in insurance and state compensation will be paid survivors of the 63 men killed in the Sonman mine blast. He estimated state compensation of approximately $7,000 for each man—and group insurance at $31,500. Efforts will be made to distribute $16,000 to $20,000 to the victims' families today, he said, adding that full settlements will be made as quickly as possible.

Campbell said work lists showed only 84 men were working in the mine at the time of the explosion about 11:55 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) yesterday, although as many as 1200 are employed at times on three shifts.

Twenty-one escaped the blast 2,000 feet back in the 50-year-old slope mine. Among them was Leslie Steel, a young mine foreman of Windber, who stayed in the pit helping rescue workers for 12 hours while his fear-stricken mother knelt praying on the hillside mine entrance, uncertain whether he was dead or alive.

Most of the victims were suffocated. Some were burned. The company received an unverified report that the death toll was 1200. Little damage was done to the mine itself.

About 1,200 were employed in the mine in three shifts. The explosion swept through only three sections, however.

Volunteers—some who had lost kinfolk in the state's worst bituminous mine disaster since 1929—helped undertakers and physicians wash and dress the bodies.

One young undertaker found the bodies of four of his cousins in one of the ambulances. A volunteer came upon the body of his next-door neighbor.

Hundreds of persons, heedless of rain and cold, stood on a hillside near the mine in Sonman last night waiting for word of the miners.

Some women knelt in the slag piles and in scattered bits of grass to pray in vain for the safety of their menfolk. Each time the rescue workers came from the mine with a body, sobs shook the clusters of women.

IMPRISONING WEALTH

Yesterday at Chicago, after three physicians summoned by the defense to testify before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, that M. L. Annenberg is too ill to serve three years in prison on his plea of guilty to evasion of $1,217,296 taxes on his 1936 income, had given testimony to the effect that he is suffering from sinus trouble, and "a marked degree of arterio-sclerosis and rectal trouble," the court took the probation petition under advisement and requested a copy of the transcript of the day's testimony, announcing that a decision would be reached later whether Annenberg should be examined by a government specialist.

Annenberg's chief counsel thereupon announced that if probation were denied, he would ask a six weeks' extension of the stay of execution, now running to July 22, in order that the defendant could have two needed operations performed before going to prison.

There is an old saying that "you can't put a million dollars in jail."

It is more tricky than true, for there have been many, many instances in which a million dollars went behind the bars just like five cents. If Annenberg actually begins a three-year sentence next week, it will be merely another example.

Here is a man, proprietor of a vast racing information service, who has been convicted of evading more than five million dollars in taxes. He had agreed to pay nine and a half million in settlement of all claims.

But the federal court decided that merely to pay now what he should have paid years ago is not enough. Annenberg must now face the legal penalty, not so much in punishment of himself, but in accordance with the judge's statement that "the main object of criminal punishment is to prevent further crime."

NO AVERAGE AMERICAN CHILD

The WPA offers photographic and linear proof that there is no such thing as an average American child.

The evidence is presented in one corner of the WPA's welfare projects exhibition in Washington—a sort of a sideshow of society.

Believing that there can be as much difference in the sizes of two 14-year-old boys in Maine and Georgia as there is in their accents, the WPA went out and measured 147,088 typical American children in fifteen states.

Some boys, it found, weigh 115 pounds and are five feet five inches tall. Others weigh 145 pounds and are five feet five tall. Still others are almost six feet and weigh but 120.

The Bureau of Home Economics participated in the mass measuring. Officials believe that the statistics will lead to size-buying and not age-buying, and that a better dressed juvenile American will result.

Lots of mothers right here in Warren discovered long ago that the best way to keep a boy from appearing well groomed is to buy his clothing according to his age, and not to fit his measurements.

The Warren County Almanac, published by the Warren Bank and Trust Company, is authority for the statement that it was five years ago today that parking meters were first placed in service in Oklahoma City.

The fire bell at the Central station received an extra workout last evening, much to the consternation and curiosity of most of the population of the borough.

Reckoned by the number of telephone calls received at this office, a refinery fire at Farmers Valley creates as much excitement in Warren as a Hitler blitzkreig.

With the familiar clock on the bank building out of service the past few days, some office workers may have a real excuse for being a little behind the time.

Old Jupe Pluvius, making an unexpected appearance last evening, is reported to have washed out a lot of picnic parties.

A statistic has it that there are only two Americans in 100 that have singing voices. But try and tell that to the star boarder in the bathtub.

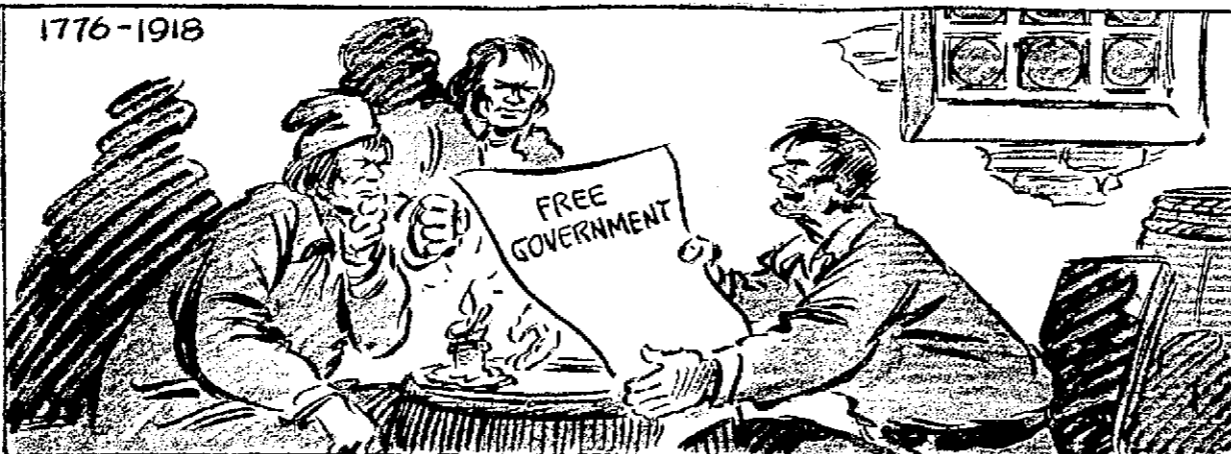

If that St. Swithin's Day adage holds true, we may expect some nice weather along about the last week in August.

YOUR NATION'S CAPITOL

By Bruce Catton

The Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

THAT'S WHAT LED F. D. R. TO SCOTCH THIRD PARTY PLAN

Chicago, July 16—The shadow of a man who isn't there falls over the Democratic national convention just as a similar shadow cast by another absent brother fell across the Republican convention a fortnight earlier.

President Roosevelt was an unseen but potent influence at Philadelphia. Wendell Willkie is the same kind of influence here.

A convention which goes to work under that kind of handicap tends to be vaguely uneasy, like a man who suspects he is being followed even though he can't actually see anything when he turns his head to look. The realization that the leader of the opposition is tough and resourceful, capable of pulling an unexpected fast one at any moment, is a damper to high spirits—and, now and then, a spur to dramatic action.

That fact partly accounts for the neat maneuver by which President Roosevelt, on the eve of the convention, scotched the third party threat.

By slipping into a message to Congress the flat statement that American boys weren't going to be sent to Europe to fight—a statement that was proposed for the Republican platform and rejected after three days of bitter argument—the President made practically certain that there won't be a third tier in the field to swipe Democratic votes. Plans for a ticket were well under way; energetic Senator Burton K. Wheeler barely a week before the convention was declaring that organization work could be expected soon after the convention if a definite peace pledge were not adopted. After the President's statement Wheeler returned promptly to the fold.

All of which encouraged some party stalwarts to chortle that a long march had been stolen on the Republicans, and that it was now the Democrats who could accuse the opposition of being the war party.... which just goes to show how some people overestimate the importance of the words which get put into party platforms.

Nevertheless, averting the third party threat was a real achievement. The presidential declaration on non-participation in the war abroad was only a part of it.

Much more important was the gradual discovery, by all hands concerned, that important backing for such a party just wasn't in sight. The 20-odd C. I. O. officials who came to Chicago to work for a third term convinced party leaders that a bolt by John Lewis was nothing much to be afraid of. If a few rebels in the platform would appease the isolationists, then the Townsendites and the left-wing unionists could make book if they wanted to and nobody'd worry.

What really is worrying the Democrats is the thought of what Willkie may do to a party some of whose important figures are highly disgruntled over the way the whole third-term movement was handled this spring.

How extensive that worry is can be gauged by the fact that the Democrats are figuring they will actually have to make a real campaign in Texas this fall. One party leader admitted: "I can probably contribute $50,000 in campaign contributions down there without much trouble—but if I were collecting a Willkie fund I could raise half a million."

The most popular form of comfort indulged in here is the assertion that Willkie reached his peak of popularity too soon.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Jack Knight's Flight Made Airmail History

WHEN the U. S. 8-cent airmail stamp, above, was released in 1924, night airmail service between New York and San Francisco was well established. The new series of airmails, issued in 1921, 16-cent and 24-cent values, was intended for use in three zones at eight cents per zone.

Night airmail service was inaugurated, unofficially, by Jack Knight's memorable flight on the first transcontinental mail test run, Feb. 22, 1921. Knight was scheduled to relay the mail from North Platte, Neb., to Omaha. A damaged tail skid delayed his takeoff until 10:44 p. m.

Reaching Omaha, Knight was told that bad weather had forced abandonment of the test. Disregarding danger, he took off for Chicago at 2 a. m., flew into a snowstorm, finally located Iowa City with his gas tank almost empty.

The ground crew at the airport had gone home, believing the flight was canceled. The night watchman heard Knight's plane, lit a flare. Knight saw the light, landed safely, refueled and went on to Chicago.

Knight's flight convinced even the most skeptical that airmail service was a distinct and important part of the U. S. postal system.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Gastro-

nomical:

Capital gourmets have an ache, but it didn't come from eating. Just the reverse, in fact. Russian caviar is up 100 per cent in price when you can get it at all. The fine French champagnes are getting as scarce as bathwater in Death Valley. The kegs of famous Holland and Munchen beers are getting down to the spigots.

Matjes herring, from Sweden, is soaring. Olives from Italy, Spain and other Mediterranean countries are far from as plentiful or as cheap as they used to be. The imported Dutch, Danish and Scandinavian cheeses no longer tickle the nostrils when you swing through the delicatessen screen doors.

The last shipment of spisbrod (Swedish bread) to arrive here, came by way of Russia and Japan. It's only a question of months now, if things go on like this, that the best smorgasbord in the land will look as meager as Sunday's chicken on Tuesday morning.

Imported sardines are no longer just hard to get out of the can... it's getting so you can't even get the cans. Polish hams are more often a memory than a reality. One more winter, and people who save their summers with Rhine wine and soda will have to turn to gin 'n' tonic. Ancient eggs, bird nests, and kippered octopus still are coming through from China but that's scant consolation. Oddly enough, the gourmets are about the only ones who are weeping... barring those importers who are finding business isn't what it was "before the war." A lot of the delicatessen and fancy food grocers will tell you it's a good thing for America. Maybe, they say, our high-hat food connoisseurs will learn to "eat America first"... and like it.

URICULAR: Don't accuse me of any drive to shut up our Congressional shop, but I just found out, and can't help repeating, that it costs $2,200 a month in telephones alone to keep Congress in session.

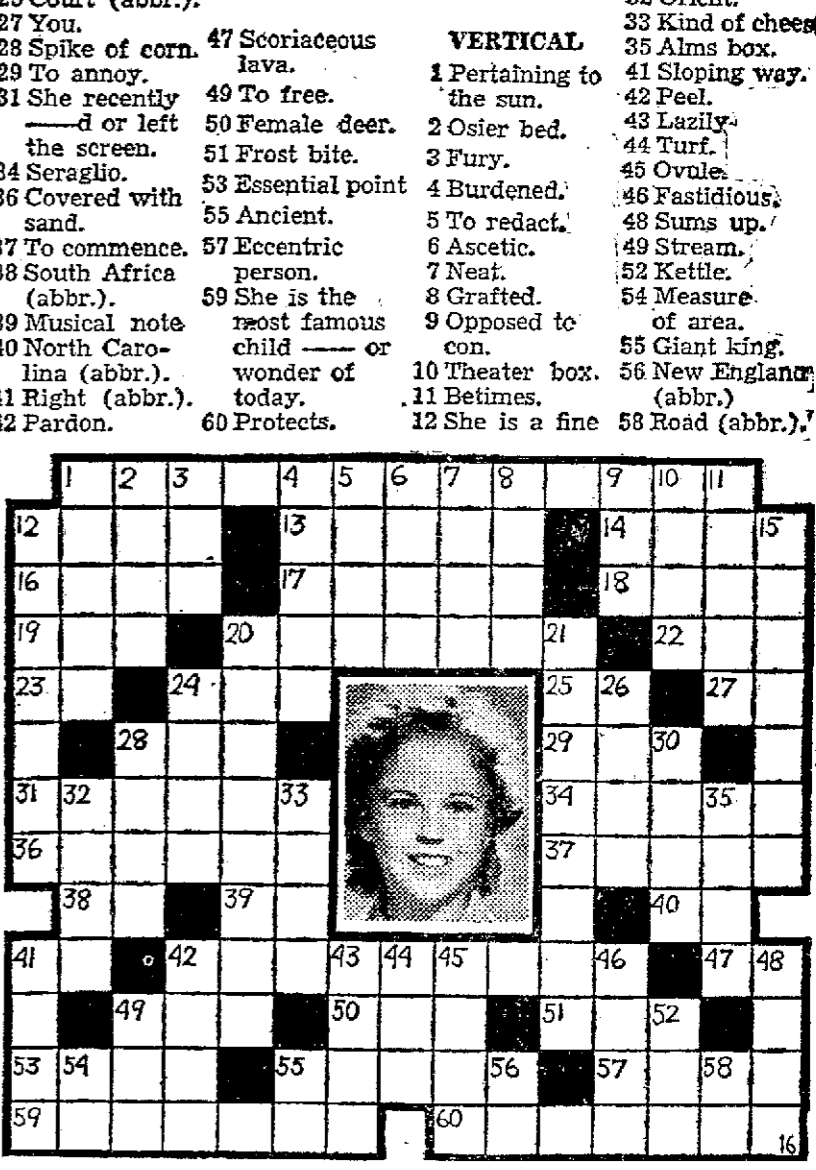

The annual telephone bill for the Capitol and the office buildings there is $40,000 to $45,000 a year. There are about 2,600 phones in the place, 1,200 belonging to the Senate and 1,400 to the House. In session, the Senate spends about $1,000 a month more; the House $1,200. That's on a basis of three cents apiece for outside calls and one cent apiece for calls to the government departments.

Fortunately for us taxpayers, there's no such thing as overtime on Capitol calls. If there were, those senators and congressmen who call up and have their mail read to them at the breakfast table and sometimes dictate answers soon would double the national debt.

QUESTIONS OF THE DAY:
Why does nearly everyone keep on referring to "The Allies" when Great Britain no longer has any alliance with anybody? Why hasn't someone done a really bang-up analysis of the propaganda in this war, pointing out that "the Allies," with a little less vigor, have applied the same technique they used in the World War, while Germany has done an about-face and by pulling out the two important stops of fear and creation of internal dissension, has been effective in nearly every conquered country? What are our ladies (and our fashion designers) going to do about the absence of Paris fashions? How long can Britain hold out? What are the Willkie clan and the New Deal going to find to fight about that won't seem too, too trivial in the face of world events (on which they seem to be in such close agreement)?

Fuses were burned out at the central fire station and caused the bell to ring for some time.

War Casualties Exceed Four Million

NATION	KILLED	WOUNDED	CAPTURED, MISSING
FRANCE 1,988,000	70,000	318,000	1,600,000
POLAND 620,000	60,000	160,000	400,000
BELGIUM 545,000	10,000	35,000	500,000
NETHERLANDS 331,000	6,000	25,000	300,000
GERMANY 243,000	50,000	165,000	28,000
BRITAIN 92,300	21,400	33,900	37,000
NORWAY 59,000	4,000	5,000	50,000

Europe's casualties for 10 months of war have passed the four million mark, but the estimated 200,000-300,000 killed is small compared to the 8,500,000 killed in four years of World War No. 1. Figures in the chart are based on official and unofficial government reports and on latest available estimates. They include both battlefield and civilian air raid casualties, but do not include Italy's estimated 4500 casualties. The count for Germany is based on official Nazi reports, and may be actually much higher. (Copyright, 1940, NEA Service.)

JAMES CAGNEY, ANN SHERIDAN HEAD CAST IN "TORRID ZONE" AT COLUMBIA WEDNESDAY

James Cagney, more famous for dishing out punishment than kisses in the movies, is quite the gay Lothario in "Torrid Zone," the film at the Columbia Theatre Wednesday to Friday. Not only does he make romantic love to "Oomph Girl" Ann Sheridan, but he has some of the aptly named film's most torrid scenes with Siren Helen Vinson.

One of his scenes with Miss Vinson ends in a long, lingering and strictly non-platonic kiss. The players did it in one take and won the commendation of Director William Keighley, but Cagney admitted he was flustered.

"I forgot what I was supposed to say," he confessed.

"That's all right," replied Keighley, "you didn't forget what you were supposed to do."

"Dr. Kildare's Strange Case"

Lionel Barrymore—hog farmer. The Dr. Gillespie of "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case," coming Wednesday to the Columbia Theatre, is owner of six razor-back hogs. Noting that a small canyon near his farm in the San Fernando Valley was full of rattlesnakes, and that picknickers often visited it, Barrymore bought the hogs and domiciled them in the canyon as a civic duty. The hogs keep the place free of snakes, eating them. This variety of hogs is impervious to snake bites and relishes the rattlers.

"Phantom Raiders"

Murder for profit is the theme of the new Nick Carter adventure, "Phantom Raiders," with Walter Pidgeon and Florence Rice in the leading roles. Wednesday and Thursday at the Library Theatre. The super-sleuth of the dime novel has been streamlined for modern audiences, but has lost none of its uncanny flair for crime in the process.

The plot deals with Nick's adventures in the Panama Canal Zone while trying to find out who is sinking ships with alarming accuracy and frequency. Pidgeon plays the part of the sleuth, and Miss Rice is Cora Barnes, attractive secretary of Ramsell, the representative of a large London insurance firm employing Pidgeon.

"Those Were the Days"

Rolling, romping college lads and lassies raising Cain on the campus of "Good Old Siwash," up setting a trolley, provoking professors, pitching woo to you, doing all the things that undergraduates of an earlier day did with so much gusto—that's what to expect in "Those Were the Days," Paramount's comedy romance, opening Wednesday and Thursday at the Library Theatre. With William Holden, Bonita Granville, Ezra Stone, Judith Barrett and Vaughan Glaser featured, the film brings George Fitzh's famous Siwash story characters to life, presents "Petey" Simmons & Co. person. Produced and directed by Ted Reed, the picture was actually shot on the campus of Knox College, Galesburg, Illinois, by its own admission the prototype of Siwash.

Plastics Manufacturing Industry Now in Operation Here; Expect to Employ 100 Persons Within Year

A new industry in Warren, the Cropp Engineering Company, which is engaged in the production of plastics, is now in operation in one of the buildings formerly occupied by the Warren Furniture Company and within a year is expected to employ approximately one hundred persons, it was announced today by the Warren Chamber of Commerce.

The industry is the brain child of a local man and has been entirely promoted without calling on the community for financial support, it was stated.

The successful completion of the first of a series of automatic presses for molding plastics. David Cropp, formerly with the Warren Lamp Company, is responsible for the design of this revolutionary equipment. He states that the machine is capable of producing one molded article each minute, and that articles up to a projected size of 14 square inches can be molded.

Molding powder, usually a phenol resin mixed with fine sawdust (wood flour), is placed in a hopper capable of holding enough material for an eight-hour shift, and from that stage the operation is completely automatic until the finished article is ejected from the dies. A series of intricate electric circuits assures that each piece is complete and perfect. These circuits are so arranged that they stop the press and summon the operator if any trouble should develop.

One of the outstanding advantages of the machine is that the cost of molds is very low as compared with molds used in the old type hand-operated machines, it was stated. A single "cavity" mold at a proportionately lower cost will make as much on this Warren-made machine as a six-cavity die on the old type press, it was pointed out. Furthermore, this Warren product is adaptable to producing any article in plastic materials.

The first machine has been under test for many days on a 24-hour basis and its operation has been so satisfactory that the management reports that six additional machines are immediately being placed on production to be offered to the molding trade.

Because of the revolutionary design and efficiency of this machine, the company expects an unprecedented demand for it from the trade in all parts of the country; and to be prepared for orders, additional machine tools are being installed.

So satisfactory has the device proved itself in pressing small items, a press to exert a pressure of 30 tons and produce articles up to 25 square inches is under construction. The larger press will be operated hydraulically but will be as completely automatic as the smaller one.

"Inasmuch as plastics are now being used for everything from toilet articles to furniture," says H. W. Correll, Chamber of Commerce secretary, "this may prove to be the biggest thing industrially that Warren has ever known. Mr. Cropp and his associates have the congratulations and best wishes of the Chamber of Commerce and the entire community."

Concerning the fact that the company is being promoted without special favors from the people of the community, Mr. Correll said: "Unfortunately too many promoters ask and expect a community to provide many of the requirements of a possible new industry before the community will even be considered as a location for a factory. Some demand a free building; others demand free rental for a period of years; others want the community to absorb large quantities of stock. Then, quite often, the new industry uses all available funds for salaries and promotion and disappears, leaving local investors holding the bag. With the Cropp Engineering Company, this is not the case."

FIRE DESTROYS FOUR TANKS AT QUAKER STATE

Fire which broke out at 4 a. m. today at the Farmers Valley refinery of the Quaker State Refining Company destroyed four storage tanks containing 500 barrels of oil apiece with a loss estimated by W. H. Rockman, plant manager, at $15,000. The blaze was brought under control about 8 o'clock this morning.

Cause of the blaze, according to reports, is still undetermined.

Tanks which were destroyed contained light products, according to refinery officials, although the exact nature of the products had not been determined early today. They were known as run-down tanks in the distillation unit of the refinery near the crude unit.

Firemen from the plant, as well as companies from Port Allegany, Eldred and Smethport, fought the flames with Foamite and swept 21 other tanks with water to save them.

Foamite was rushed in trucks to Farmers Valley by the United Refinery Company here, the Sinclair Refining Company at Wallsville, Kendall Refining Company at Bradford and the Socony-Vacuum Refining Company at Olean.

Twenty-five tons of foamite also was shipped by truck, with police escort, from the American LaFrance factory in Elmira, N. Y.

There were 93,037 new passenger cars registered in 22 states during May, 1940. This is 22.26 per cent above the same period of 1939.

Figures in the chart are based on official and unofficial government reports and on latest available estimates. They include both battlefield and civilian air raid casualties, but do not include Italy's estimated 4500 casualties. The count for Germany is based on official Nazi reports, and may be actually much higher. (Copyright, 1940, NEA Service.)

AMUSEMENTS

JAMES CAGNEY, ANN SHERIDAN HEAD CAST IN "TORRID ZONE" AT COLUMBIA WEDNESDAY

James Cagney, more famous for dishing out punishment than kisses in the movies, is quite the gray Lothario in "Torrid Zone," the film at the Columbia Theatre Wednesday to Friday. Not only does he make romantic love to "Oomph Girl" Ann Sheridan, but he has some of the aptly named film's most torrid scenes with Siren Helen Vinson.

One of his scenes with Miss Vinson ends in a long, lingering and strictly non-platonic kiss. The players did it in one take and won the commendation of Director William Keighley, but Cagney admitted he was flustered.

"I forgot what I was supposed to say," he confessed. "That's all right," replied Keighley, "you didn't forget what you were supposed to do."

"Dr. Kildare's Strange Case" Lionel Barrymore—hog farmer. The Dr. Gillespie of "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case" coming Wednesday to the Columbia Theatre, is owner of six razor-back hogs. Noting that a small canyon near his farm in the San Fernando Valley was full of rattlesnakes, and that picknickers often visited it, Barrymore bought the hogs and domiciled them in the canyon as a civic duty. The hogs keep the place free of snakes, eating them. This variety of hogs is impervious to snake bites and relishes the rattlers.

DOUBLE FEATURE AT THE LIBRARY THEATRE WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

"Phantom Raiders" Murder for profit is the theme of the new Nick Carter adventure, "Phantom Raiders," with Walter Pidgeon and Florence Rice in the leading roles. Wednesday and Thursday at the Library Theatre. The super-sleuth of the dime novel has been streamlined for modern audiences, but has lost none of its uncanny flair for crime in the process.

The plot deals with Nick's adventures in the Panama Canal Zone while trying to find out who is sinking ships with alarming accuracy and frequency. Pidgeon plays the part of the sleuth, and Miss Rice is Cora Barnes, attractive secretary of Ramsell, the representative of a large London insurance firm employing Pidgeon.

"Those Were the Days" Rollicking, romping college lads and lassies raising Cain on the campus of "Good Old Siwash," upsetting a trolley, provoking poofs, sparking (pitching woo to you), doing all the things that undergraduates of an earlier day did with so much gusto—that's what to expect in "Those Were the Days," Paramount's comedy romance. Opening Wednesday and Thursday at the Library Theatre. With William Holden, Bonita Granville, Ezra Stone, Judith Barrett and Vaughn Glaser featured, the film brings George Fitch's famous Siwash story characters to life, presents "Petey" Simmons & Co. in person. Produced and directed by Ted Reed, the picture was actually shot on the campus of Knox College, Galesburg, Illinois, by its own admission the prototype of Siwash.

HERMAN NIELSEN

His body was shipped to Vancouver for burial.

FIRE DESTROYS FOUR TANKS AT QUAKER STATE

Fire which broke out at 4 a. m. today at the Farmers Valley Refinery of the Quaker State Refining Company destroyed four storage tanks containing 500 barrels of oil apiece with a loss estimated by W. H. Rockman, plant manager, at $15,000. The blaze was brought under control about 8 o'clock this morning.

Cause of the blaze, according to reports, is still undetermined. Tanks which were destroyed contained light products, according to refinery officials, although the exact nature of the products had not been determined early today. They were known as run-down tanks in the distillation unit of the refinery near the crude unit.

Firemen from the plant, as well as companies from Port Allegany, Eldred and Smethport, fought the flames with Foamite and swept 21 other tanks with water to save them.

Foamite was rushed in trucks to Farmers Valley by the United Refinery Company here, the Sinclair Refining Company at Wallsville, Kendall Refining Company at Bradford and the Socony-Vacuum Refining Company at Olean.

Twenty-five tons of foamite also was shipped by truck, with police escort, from the American Laffance factory in Elmira, N. Y.

There were 93,037 new passenger cars registered in 22 states during May, 1940. This is 22.26 per cent above the same period of 1939.

Plastics Manufacturing Industry Now in Operation Here; Expect to Employ 100 Persons Within Year

A new industry in Warren, the Cropp Engineering Company, which is engaged in the production of plastics, is now in operation in one of the buildings formerly occupied by the Warren Furniture Company and within a year is expected to employ approximately one hundred persons, it was announced today by the Warren Chamber of Commerce.

The industry is the brain child of a local man and has been entirely promoted without calling on the community for financial support, it was stated.

The company today announced the successful completion of the first of a series of automatic presses for molding plastics. David Cropp, formerly with the Warren Lamp Company, is responsible for the design of this revolutionary equipment. He states that the machine is capable of producing one molded article each minute, and that articles up to a projected size of 14 square inches can be molded.

Molding powder, usually a phenol resin mixed with fine sawdust (wood flour), is placed in a hopper capable of holding enough material for an eight-hour shift, and from that stage the operation is completely automatic until the finished article is ejected from the dies. A series of intricate electric circuits assures that each piece is complete and perfect. These circuits are so arranged that they stop the press and summon the operator if any trouble should develop.

CIVIL AIRPORT PLAN IS VITAL

Harrisburg, July 16.—A vital factor in any national defense program for improving and expanding American air base and airway facilities will be Pennsylvania's newly-completed civil airport and airway plan. State Commerce Secretary Richard P. Brown reported today.

Brown based his report on information furnished by the commerce department's state planning board and the state revenue department's division of aeronautics, the two agencies primarily interested in the plan.

"Our Pennsylvania airport and airway plan," said Brown, "is now being coordinated by the Civil Aeronautics Authority with similar plans for each of the other states. Its recommendations call for improvement of many existing air fields, establishment of additional fields, abandonment of certain other fields, location of new airways, etc. Its inclusion in a military defense plan would make available fields for necessary landings by new planes being flown to the Atlantic coast from Middle Western factories, for pilot training centers, for supply and repair bases, and for defense of the state's large industrial centers."

NO BARGAINS YET
Harrisburg, July 16.—(P.) The price of Pennsylvania's 1940 motor licenses will not be halved until October 1, the department of revenue noted today, although half the year is gone. The date for bargain rates was pushed from July 1 because of the law that changed the start of the licensing year from January 1 to April 1.

Casual Slaughterers

By VIRGINIA HANSON

YESTERDAY: Kay tells Julia of Sandra's intention to marry Jeff immediately. Julia is furious at Sandra's intention that Jeff is connected with the murder.

Chapter 19

Routine Question

"YOU just don't understand Sandra," Julia said patiently, running a comb through her long bleached bob. "She likes men—different men, lots of them. Last night it happened to be Ivan. Tomorrow it might be the chaplain or Gerald or—Dad. But Jeff's the one she wants to marry, for the perfectly simple reason that he's the one she's in love with. There couldn't be any other reason—he hasn't a dime."

"Maybe she is doing it to spite you."

"She doesn't hate me that well." We went down the back stairs, past the sound of Cora muttering in the kitchen and out the service entrance.

"We'll take the coupe; Mimi won't want it," Julia said, crossing the gravelled back road to the double garage. "It's time for chapel to let out. We'll have to hurry."

But the chapel was closed and showed no sign of ever having been open. And when we went on to the club the first person we saw was Felicia Bridgwell seated on the veranda surrounded by the Sunday paper, calmly darning.

"My babies are all getting so big," she simpered, holding up a man's sock.

"I thought you were at church," I said, failing for once to appreciate my favorite brand of humor. "No church. The chaplain fell afoul of more poison ivy last night. That poor man." She signed piously. "I believe he sat in it this time."

Our continued sobriety drew from her a shrewd glance which passed from one to the other of us. She became pleasantly matter of fact.

"So we came home again. Or at least I did. But if you're looking for Sandra I can only say that she's some distance from here by now."

"With Jeff?" demanded Julia with remarkable self-control.

"With Jeff. He met us on the way home. He was driving and he had a marriage license. When he learned the chaplain was non compos mentis, or vice versa, as you might say, they set out for parts unknown. They asked me to go along. I have Sunday dinner to supervise. Then they came here and looked for you. Kay, and when you were not to be found they up and decided that maybe two was all it took to get married, so off they went—"

I did not wait for her to finish her cheerful rattling. Julia was as white as her hat. I took her firmly by the elbow and propelled her to my rooms.

The Trap

I DON'T know where our minds went that we didn't see the trap that was waiting for us, didn't make our plans and decide on our stories. We were agreed to keep silence on one thing only—our glimpse of Sandra in Ivan's arms. That agreement seemed simple enough to carry out until Colonel Pennant, smiling at me across the big mahogany desk in the library of his quarters, asked me kindly and with an obvious air of putting off a routine question, when I had last seen Ivan alive.

Consider that question for a moment and you will understand the predicament I was in. To admit having seen him on the barge, where he was later found dead, would be to point to the very thing Julia most wanted concealed. The ensuing questions would be inevitable. Was he alone? No, Sandra was with him. Did you see anyone else on or near the barge at that time? Yes—Jeff.

Raised eyebrows. I hesitated. Julia was sitting to one side and a little behind me. I dared not look around at her before I answered, but I could feel her tension, the silent plea she was sending me.

I turned to Adam, seated at one end of the big desk with a notebook and pencil, and with such candor as I could summon, gave my answer in the form of an oblique question.

"When we walked off down the beach they were all together singing, weren't they?" "That's the way I remember it," Adam admitted, but he looked at me for a fraction of a second longer than was necessary, and I could not guess what he was thinking. He might have been remembering that moment on the beach; or he might have been registering my evasion.

If they had pressed me further about Ivan I think I would have told them the rest of what I knew. Perhaps I would have told it anyway if I had been able to realize that the lean, friendly man in uniform with the silver eagles on his shoulders, the man who had danced with me, played bridge with me and told me funny stories about the service and about West Point, represented an authority that went beyond the county even the state. An authority complete within the boundaries of his garrison and answerable only to a couple of superior officers and to the President of the United States.

I knew that, in a general way, through my unobtainable experience of murder at Fort Haven. But it was difficult to feel the wholesome awe that the normal civilian has for the customary forces of law and order. Besides, he was Julia's father, and Julia was prepared to pull the wool over his eyes in an effort to protect Jeff. She knew the service better than I did, and my sympathies were all with her. If possible, I wanted to leave this for her to handle.

Profound Amusement
IT was possible. Colonel Pennant did not ask me again when I had last seen Ivan alive. He accepted my evasion as an answer. And if my conscience troubled me a little I comforted myself with the unspoken gratitude in Julia's eyes.

For her father turned to her at once.

"What happened when the singing broke up?" Julia shrugged, avoided his eyes.

"Gerald and I decided to turn cartwheels. It seemed like a good idea at the time." She smiled faintly. "I didn't notice what the others did."

"And when you came back, Katherine?" "They were still turning cartwheels. And Jeff was asleep on a blanket."

I saw then that it would have to come out—about Sandra and Ivan on the barge. But perhaps we could avoid the suggestion that Jeff had known anything about it.

"See anyone else?" I remembered the chaplain plodding down the beach and I told them about that.

"Then Sandra and Ivan must have been together," he said. And as that seemed to require no answer I was prudently silent. An instant later—"Where is Sandra?"

"By now she's probably Mrs. Jefferson Tack," said Julia, in a voice she contrived to make casual except for a break at the end. A break in her voice that was the first break in her composure since I had taken her to my rooms and made her lie, white and tearless, on my couch while I looked at her helplessly and tried to think of something comforting to say.

They had sent for us both then to come back to the colonel's quarters; and with relief and admiration I had seen her pull herself together and assume a fair imitation of indifference. But it could not last much longer.

Her father was regarding her with profound amazement.

"What did you say?" he demanded.

I broke into nervous speech, relating my story of Sandra's early call and her sudden determination to get married. The two men listened without comment, but when I had finished Colonel Pennant's normally genial face expressed angry disapproval.

"Why wasn't I told of this?" he asked coldly.

I answered, stammering a little, that I had considered it none of my business, which was true enough, but did not save my sense of guilt for the other things I had not told him. I had never seen his official manner—had not realized he could seem so forbidding.

Julia came to my defense. "We tried to stop them, but they had already gone," she said dully. Parents can be surprisingly blind. He seemed unconscious of her personal tragedy in his own sudden wrath.

"I'll have a word to say to Lieutenant Tack about this," he announced grimly.

"But it wasn't his fault," Julia protested.

"Of course it was his fault. Sandra's a levelheaded girl. He got tired of waiting, the impatient young pup. Upset everyone—plans, arrangements." I may have been wrong, but I thought he was groping for grounds for his anger. And he produced them triumphantly. "Wait until Mimi hears of it—she'll be wild!"

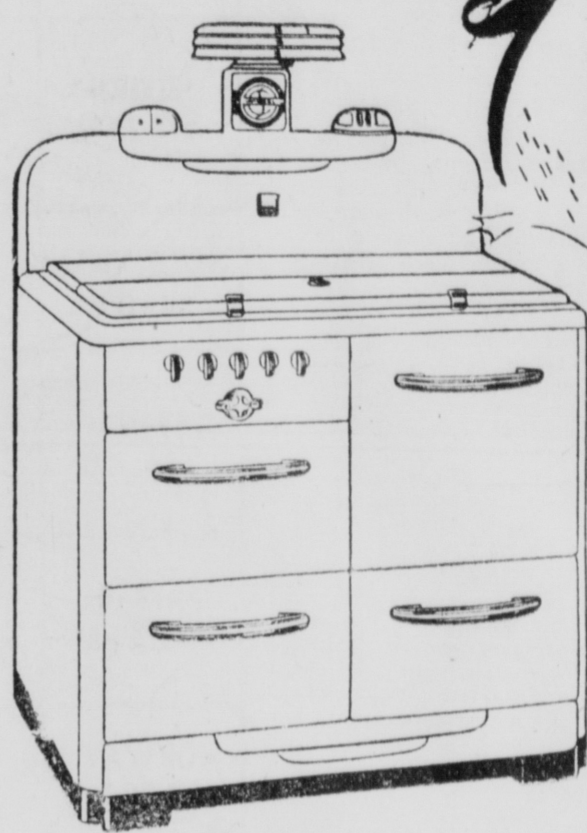

He rose from his chair, the investigation apparently forgotten, and started for the door.

Bahamas Glad About Windsor; Not Glad About Other News

The harbor of Nassau. Some of the many cays of the Bahamas are seen in the upper left corner.

BY THOMAS J. B. WENNER
NEA Service Special Correspondent

Nassau, The Bahamas, July 16.—The normally placid and courteous Bahamian is not so placid these days. He is trying hard to remain courteous.

Most exciting and welcome news in years for the islands was appointment of the Duke of Windsor as governor and commander-in-chief. Nearly everyone here predicts a big lift for the archipelago's social life and an even bigger boost for tourist trade from the U. S.

But the annexing talk is another matter.

If Britain meets the fate of France, these closest of all British possessions off United States shores may go on the colonial "block." Reports circulate here that plans before the U. S. Congress envisage a "deal" for cession of the Bahamas in consideration of outstanding war debt payments.

This rile Bahamians.

Persons long resident in New Providence Island, center of economic and political activity, consider the Bahamas "most pro-British and anti-American of all British outposts in this hemisphere." The general attitude is pretty well summed up by this statement made to me by a gentleman of long and reputable standing in the archipelago:

"In the first place we don't recognize the justice of the war debt claims. The United States got in to the last war very late. She was lucky not to lose more soldiers in France, trying to help stop 'Jerry' from over-running Europe."

"Second, the Washington government is expected to live up to its New Deal principles. So far President Roosevelt has maintained an anti-imperialist policy in the West Indies and the Caribbean.

"Third, our large colored population would not stand for it. You couldn't get a baker's dozen to vote for any such proposal today, the war situation notwithstanding."

"In the final analysis, our islands are not for sale. Britain does not turn over the inhabitants of her colonies to the highest bidder. If Britain loses out in Europe the story may be different. But she hasn't lost the war yet."

British officialdom here appears to take an even more haughty and untouchable attitude—suggesting that the most delicate diplomatic maneuvering will have to be employed if the United States is to bring the Bahamas within the scope of western hemisphere "protective custody."

If Britain meets serious reversals in the final phase of the war, most Bahamians apparently would like to see some sort of guarantee by the U. S. and Latin American countries of archipelago neutrality in the western Atlantic—with full independence in domestic affairs.

For the rest, the islands are not "for sale."

But the inhabitants of the Bahamas know on which side their bread is buttered. The economic well-spring of the islands has always been the United States. Bahamian imports from the United States far outdistance those of Great Britain and Canada combined; reciprocally, Americans are the islands' largest customers.

The islands buy a great deal from the U. S., but they require a lucrative American tourist trade to pay for their imports.

This may seem like a one-sided deal, but it is the sort of thing the U. S. will have to think more about if the Monroe Doctrine is to become more than a mouth-ing expression of American policy.

Strategically, the islands are important. Nassau, the capital, is two hours flying time from Florida. Bimini, nearest island of the group, is less than 40 minutes by air from Miami. The islands stretch for more than 600 miles from Haiti to Florida. Even the passage to the Caribbean between Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic might be jeopardized from easternmost points in the Bahamas.

Congress has taken steps to bolster present defenses in the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and Cuba. Americans could feel safer if the Bahamian group were also brought inside the defense line.

How has the war affected the Bahamas? On the surface, very little. Life goes on in just about the same leisurely manner it has for centuries. But underneath the gloss of affluent tourist gaiety and native lethargy is a deep (if somewhat masked) official British gloom.

Tourist trade has fallen off considerably. Ship schedules have been sharply curtailed. The hope here is that virtual stoppage of European travel—plus the attraction of Edward and Wally—will bring increasing numbers of American tourists.

Patriotic fervor runs high. The islands have contributed 20,000 pounds to imperial defense, and a wartime "defense army" has been formed.

There is talk of fifth column activity, but there appears to be little menace in the islands. The population is approximately nine-tenths colored, and the natives have fared well under British rule.

Almost no German or Italian elements reside in the islands.

Akeley Girl Named On Dean's List For High Achievement

A special dispatch to the Times-Mirror from Bucknell University at Lewisburg, reports that Miss Jean A. Koebley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Koebley, of Akeley, has been named on the dean's honor list for high scholastic standing in the past semester.

Miss Koebley, who will be a Bucknell junior this fall, was one of 46 sophomores cited for the honor, which is restricted to those students achieving an academic average of 85 percent or better.

A graduate of Warren High School, Miss Koebley is enrolled in the liberal arts course at Bucknell, where she is a member of Phi Mu, women's social sorority; also the dramatic organization, Cap and Dagger.

IMPRISONING WEALTH

Yesterday at Chicago, after three physicians summoned by the defense to testify before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, that M. L. Annenberg is too ill to serve three years in prison on his plea of guilty to evasion of $1,217,296 taxes on his 1936 income, had given testimony to the effect that he is suffering from sinus trouble, and "a marked degree of arterio-sclerosis and rectal trouble," the court took the probation petition under advisement and requested a copy of the transcript of the day's testimony, announcing that a decision would be reached later whether Annenberg should be examined by a government specialist.

Annenberg's chief counsel thereupon announced that if probation were denied, he would ask a six weeks' extension of the stay of execution, now running to July 22, in order that the defendant could have two needed operations performed before going to prison.

There is an old saying that "you can't put a million dollars in jail."

It is more tricky than true, for there have been many, many instances in which a million dollars went behind the bars just like five cents. If Annenberg actually begins a three-year sentence next week, it will be merely another example.

Here is a man, proprietor of a vast racing information service, who has been convicted of evading more than five million dollars in taxes. He had agreed to pay nine and a half million in settlement of all claims.

But the federal court decided that merely to pay now what he should have paid years ago is not enough. Annenberg must now face the legal penalty, not so much in punishment of himself, but in accordance with the judge's statement that "the main object of criminal punishment is to prevent further crime."

NO AVERAGE AMERICAN CHILD

The WPA offers photographic and linear proof that there is no such thing as an average American child.

The evidence is presented in one corner of the WPA's welfare projects exhibition in Washington—a sort of a sideshow of society.

Believing that there can be as much difference in the sizes of two 14-year-old boys in Maine and Georgia as there is in their accents, the WPA went out and measured 147,088 typical American children in fifteen states.

Some boys, it found, weigh 115 pounds and are five feet five inches tall. Others weigh 145 pounds and are five feet five tall. Still others are almost six feet and weigh but 120.

The Bureau of Home Economics participated in the mass measuring. Officials believe that the statistics will lead to size-buying and not age-buying, and that a better dressed juvenile American will result.

Lots of mothers right here in Warren discovered long ago that the best way to keep a boy from appearing well groomed is to buy his clothing according to his age, and not to fit his measurements.

The Warren County Almanac, published by the Warren Bank and Trust Company, is authority for the statement that it was five years ago today that parking meters were first placed in service in Oklahoma City.

The fire bell at the Central station received an extra workout last evening, much to the consternation and curiosity of most of the population of the borough.

Reckoned by the number of telephone calls received at this office, a refinery fire at Farmers Valley creates as much excitement in Warren as a Hitler blitzkrieg.

With the familiar clock on the bank building out of service the past few days, some office workers may have a real excuse for being a little behind the time.

Old Jupe Pluvius, making an unexpected appearance last evening, is reported to have washed out a lot of picnic parties.

A statistic has it that there are only two Americans in 100 that have singing voices. But try and tell that to the star boarder in the bathtub.

If that St. Swithin's Day adage holds true, we may expect some nice weather along about the last week in August.

THAT'S WHAT LED F. D. R. TO SCOTCH THIRD PARTY PLAN

Chicago, July 16.—The shadow of a man who isn't there falls over the Democratic national convention, just as a similar shadow cast by another absent brother fell across the Republican convention a fortnight earlier.

President Roosevelt was an unseen but potent influence at Philadelphia. Wendell Willkie is the same kind of influence here.

A convention which goes to work under that kind of handicap tends to be vaguely uneasy, like a man who suspects he is being followed even though he can't actually see anything when he turns his head to look. The realization that the leader of the opposition is tough and resourceful, capable of pulling an unexpected fast one at any moment, is a damper to high spirits—and, now and then, a spur to dramatic action.

That fact partly accounts for the neat maneuver by which President Roosevelt, on the eve of the convention, scotched the third party threat.

By slipping into a message to Congress the flat statement that American boys weren't going to be sent to Europe to fight—a statement that was proposed for the Republican platform and rejected after three days of bitter argument—the President made practically certain that there won't be a third ticket in the field to swipe Democratic votes. Plans for such a ticket were well under way; energetic Senator Burton K. Wheeler barely a week before the convention was declaring that organization work could be expected soon after the convention if a definite peace pledge were not adopted. After the President's statement Wheeler returned promptly to the fold.

All of which encouraged some party stalwarts to chortle that a long march had been stolen on the Republicans, and that it was now the Democrats who could accuse the opposition of being the war party.... which just goes to show how some people overestimate the importance of the words which get put into party platforms.

Nevertheless, averting the third party threat was a real achievement. The presidential declaration on non-participation in the war abroad was only a part of it. Much more important was the gradual discovery, by all hands concerned, that important backing for such a party just wasn't in sight. The 20-odd C. I. O. officials who came to Chicago to work for a third term convinced party leaders that a bolt by John Lewis was going much to be afraid of. If labor was going to stay put, and if a few words in the platform would appease the isolationists, then the Townsends and the left-wing unionists could make book if they wanted to and nobody'd really.

What really is worrying the Democrats is the thought of what Willkie may do to a party some of whose important figures are highly disgruntled over the way the whole third-term movement was handled this spring.

How extensive that worry is can be gauged by the fact that the Democrats are figuring they will actually have to make a real campaign in Texas this fall. One party leader admitted: "I can probably collect $50,000 in campaign contribution down there without much trouble—but if I were collecting a Willkie fund I could raise half a million."

The most popular form of comfort indulged in here is the assertion that Willkie reached his peak of popularity too soon.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Jack Knight's Flight Made Airmail History

WHEN the U. S. 8-cent airmail stamp, above, was released in 1924, night airmail service between New York and San Francisco was well established. The new series of airmails, issued in 8-cent, 16-cent and 24-cent values, was intended for use in three zones at eight cents per zone.

Night airmail service was inaugurated, unofficially, by Jack Knight's memorable flight on the first transcontinental mail test run, Feb. 22, 1921. Knight was scheduled to relay the mail from North Platte, Neb., to Omaha. A damaged tail skid delayed his takeoff until 10:44 p. m.

Reaching Omaha, Knight was told that bad weather had forced abandonment of the test. Disregarding danger, he took off for Chicago at 2 a. m., flew into a snowstorm, finally located Iowa City with his gas tank almost empty.

The ground crew at the airport had gone home, believing the flight was canceled. The night watchman heard Knight's plane, lit a flare. Knight saw the light, landed safely, refueled and went on to Chicago.

Knight's flight convinced even the most skeptical that airmail service was a distinct and important part of the U. S. postal system.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Gastro-

nomical: Capital gourmets have an ache, but it didn't come from eating. Just the reverse, in fact. Russian caviar is up 100 per cent in price when you can get it at all. The fine French champagnes are getting as scarce as bathwater in Death Valley. The kegs of famous Holland and Munchen beers are getting down to the spigots.

Matjes herring, from Sweden, is soaring. Olives from Italy, Spain and other Mediterranean countries are far from as plentiful or as cheap as they used to be. The imported Dutch, Danish and Scandinavian cheeses no longer tickle the nostrils when you swing through the delicatessen screen doors.

The last shipment of spishbrod (Swedish bread) to arrive here, came by way of Russia and Japan. It's only a question of months now, if things go on like this, that the best smorgasbord in the land will look as meager as Sunday's chicken on Tuesday morning.

Imported sardines are no longer just hard to get out of the can... it's getting so you can't even get the cans. Polish hams are more often a memory than a reality. One more winter, and people who save their summers with Rhine wine and soda will have to turn to gin 'n' tonic. Ancient eggs, bird nests, and kippered octopus still are coming through from China but that's scant consolation. Oddly enough, the gourmets are about the only ones who are weeping... barring those importers who are finding business isn't what it was "before the war." A lot of the delicatessen and fancy food grocers will tell you it's a good thing for America. Maybe, they say, our high-hat food connoisseurs will learn to "eat America first"... and like it.

ARICULAR: Don't accuse me of any drive to shut up our Congressional shop, but I just found out, and can't help repeating, that it costs $2,200 a month in telephone calls to keep Congress in session.

The annual telephone bill for the Capitol and the office buildings there is $40,000 to $45,000 a year. There are about 2,600 phones in the place, 1,200 belonging to the Senate and 1,400 to the House. In session, the Senate spends about $1,000 a month more; the House $1,200. That's of outside calls and one cent apiece for calls to the government departments.

Fortunately for us taxpayers there's no such thing as overtime on Capitol calls. If there were those senators and congressmen who call up and have their mail read to them at the breakfast table and sometimes dictate answers soon would double the national debt.

QUESTIONS OF THE DAY: Why does nearly everyone keep on referring to "The Allies" when Great Britain no longer has any alliance with anybody? Why hasn't someone done a really bang-up analysis of the propaganda in this war, pointing out that "the Allies" with a little less vigor, have applied the same technique they used in the World War, while Germany has done an about-face and by pulling out the two important stops of fear and creation of internal dissension has been effective in nearly every conquered country? What are our ladies (and our fashion designers) going to do about the absence of Paris fashions? How long can Britain hold out? What are the Willkie clan and the New Deal going to find to fight about that won't seem too, too trivial in the face of world events (on which they seem to be in such close agreement)?

PLANNING BOARD TAX STUDY WINS WIDE APPROVAL

Harrisburg, July 16—With requests for State Planning Board's detailed tax study of Pennsylvania's civil subdivisions pouring in daily, State Commerce Secretary Richard P. Brown, today reported, as chairman of the planning board, that prominent industrialists, Chamber of Commerce secretaries, local government officials and other civic leaders have joined in acclaiming the survey "the first real picture of Pennsylvania's local tax structure."

"Some sample reactions from those who have studied the survey," said Brown, "indicate that it fills a real need. For instance, from Easton came this letter: 'I think this is one of the best pieces of work to help the poor Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce secretary in selling our communities to ourselves and others that has come across my desk for a long time.'"

From the state president of the Association of Boroughs: "... it would be rendering the state a great service ... if every borough in the state could have a copy."

The survey tabulates every local tax for each civil subdivision individually and, through use of an adjustment factor, produces totals that may be compared.

DUCKS DO WALK ON BACKS OF FISH

Harrisburg, July 16—That ducks do walk on the backs of fish at Pymatuning, Pennsylvania's largest artificial lake, is proven in a motion picture news reel now being shown in numerous theaters. The State Department of Commerce has previously called attention to this oddity, which stirred skeptics to doubt.

Both ducks and fish are attracted to food thrown into the water by tourists at the Crawford county lake. Arriving at the same time by two different methods of navigation the result is: ducks walking on the backs of fish.

In Germany, coffee is rationed out to the public with many big coffee houses selling only one-eighth of a pound to a customer.

1,250 Boys Will Be Given Extra Military Drills at American Legion Keystone Camp

Indianstown, Gap, July 16—(P)—An army of 1,250 boys, selected by more than 30 organizations to attend the American Legion-sponsored Keystone boys camp, will be given extra military drills during the annual ten-day encampment this year, opening Sunday.

The youths, ranging in age from 16 to 19, always get training in Americanism, government and the theory of politics, but a few sub-mined year, Director Tom E. Williams announced today.

Last year, four-fifths of the boys enrolled at the camp on the National Guard reservation were sons of veterans, Williams said. Other organizations besides the American Legion such as Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, sponsor the campers.

The boys will arrive Sunday, to remain until July 30. First they will be assigned to cottages of 36 boys each, designated as "cities." Each elects a mayor, councilmen, treasurer, and other officials.

On Monday, two "cities" will combine to elect judges, sheriff, district attorney and other county officials.

rich garden soil can be used to replace the removed soil.

County Agents News

CARE OF ORNAMENTALS IS TIMELY TASK NOW

Timely reminders for the ornamental work around the home grounds are given by County Agent O. C. Tritt.

He says that one method to revive shrubs, trees, or vines which arrive in a dried-out condition is to place them in a trench and cover them, tops and all, with wet soil for a week or ten days. This does not apply, however, to evergreens. If a small pool or stream is available, the plants can be placed in it instead of burying them. Immersion for 24 hours is sufficient. Balls of earth around the roots of evergreens can be soaked thoroughly, and stored in trays until early fall. These bulbs then can be planted in beds outdoors for spring blooming.

Many of the potted plants indoors require cultivation. This involves removal of a quarter to half inch of the surface soil and loosening the next half inch with an old kitchen fork or knife. Some

CONTROL OAT SMUT TO PREVENT LOSS

The worst enemy of the oats crop in Pennsylvania is smut. It reduces the yield of oats in fields planted with untreated seed by about two or three bushels an acre. Destructiveness of smut can be more easily realized when it is known that if all the smutted heads were separated out by themselves, for every eight acres of oats grown in Pennsylvania one acre would be growing only plants in which all the oat grains had been replaced with smut.

County Agent O. C. Tritt reports that seed treatment costing about four cents an acre eliminates smut and prevents loss from this disease. An extension circular on the subject can be obtained at his office in Warren.

During 1938, London had 7060 fires. Only seven persons lost their lives through being trapped in burning buildings during that year.

Alberts and wife and Dr. Crossman. Colorado Springs Colo., July 16—Trails blazed by such explorers and adventures as Fr. Francisco Silvestre Velez Escalante and the scout Kit Carson will be followed by Wendell L. Willkie—if Colorado's Gov. Ralph L. Carr has his way.

Tracing the itinerary tentatively mapped by Governor Carr, Willkie, his wife and son Philip will visit these spots:

First they motor across the continental divide to Gunnison in the heart of the big game country. During their day's stop at Gunnison, the Willkies try their skill at trout fishing. At Almont, they will be guests at a fish fry.

Delegations of ranch owners and cowpunchers have to make the long trip from summer range to Almont by saddle horse, greet the Willkies during their stay there.

From the Gunnison district Governor Carr plans to lead the Willkies west and south to the San Juan Mountains, a rugged, gorgeous land that yielded Tom Walsh, father of Evelyn Walsh McLean, and other hardy prospectors fortunes in gold and silver.

Willkie will be button-holed by old-timers who never miss a chance to recite a bit of San Juan political history of the winter of 1873-74 when Alfred Packer, the Colorado manateer, consumed five prospecting companions and was sentenced to death by an irate Irish judge "as a warnin' agin re-ducin' the Dimycaitic populashun iv this foine state."

Passing through the San Juan country, the Willkies will be shown famed Red Mountain and scores of metal mines. They will travel over the Million Dollar Highway, an engineering development of Colorado's early days, to Electra Lake, a resort in the San Juans.

Next day they will drive to Durango, trading center of the La Plata mountain district. They will Springs by plane or automobile, and the nominee will work on his acceptance speech.

Governor Carr planned several short trips, subject to the Willkies' approval. One calls for an automobile trip through Rocky Mountain National Park and over the Trail Ridge Road, highest continuous auto highway in the world, to Grand Lake, mountain resort and yachting center near Denver.

Another trip will include a swing through camps west of Denver and a visit to Central City, where the Willkies will attend a performance of "The Bartered Bride," being presented by a Metropolitan Opera cast in the historic Central City Opera House where Bernhardt herself once entertained hardrock miners in the lusty gold rush days.

Willkie also expects to make short plane trips to Albuquerque, N. M., and Cheyenne, Wyo., for brief conferences with political leaders.

A saw mill will be erected soon on the Richard Glover farm northeast of here which was originally deeded to the Glover family by William Penn shortly after the colony of Pennsylvania was established. The 15-acre tract was sold recently.

TO BISECT HOUSE

Erie, July 16—(P)—Erie county court has ordered a new two-story house sheared in half within 30 days because Charles P. Willis, owner of an abutting property, protested the house extended 18 feet over the building line fixed by a city ordinance.

Woman's Club Plans Interesting Party Friday Afternoon

The Woman's Club has announced an interesting and unusual entertainment for Friday of this week, for its members and their friends, and the public.

The day will begin with a street market, to be held on Poplar street, between Third and Fourth avenues. It will open at 9:30 o'clock and will be gay with attractive and well-stocked booths in charge of an efficient corps of salesladies. Everything needed for weekend supplies will be available at moderate prices.

This is going to be a lot of fun as well as real practical use to the housekeeper. Further and more complete details will be given in a market announcement published tomorrow.

A garden party is planned for the afternoon, when Miss Anna Rockwell and Mrs. W. F. Henry have kindly opened their beautiful garden to the public from two until six o'clock. This garden is one of the chief beauty spots of the town and is too well known to need further description. There could be no lovelier place to spend a summer afternoon and a cordial welcome is extended to everyone.

Tables for cards will be provided and there will also be plenty of comfortable chairs in shady places for those who merely wish to spend a social hour and meet their friends. Refreshments will be served and a delightful afternoon is anticipated. Prizes for cards will be provided and tables may be reserved by calling 2446, 133 or 925.

A similar garden party given last year was so thoroughly enjoyed by everyone that it was decided to repeat it and all club members are urged to attend and bring their friends.

Busy days loom just ahead—
you'll need a trim new shirtwaist to meet them smartly. In Pattern 4499, Anne Adams has nicely combined tailored style and soft lines.

in self fabric or bright contrast, perhaps adding cuffs to match.
And for gay touches use a button

Woman's Club Plans Interesting Party Friday Afternoon

The Woman's Club has announced an interesting and unusual entertainment for Friday of this week, for its members and their friends, and the public.

The day will begin with a street market, to be held on Poplar street, between Third and Fourth avenues. It will open at 9:30 o'clock and will be gay with attractive and well-stocked booths in charge of an efficient corps of salesladies. Everything needed for weekend supplies will be available at moderate prices.

This is going to be a lot of fun as well as real practical use to the housekeeper. Further and more complete details will be given in a market announcement published tomorrow.

A garden party is planned for the afternoon, when Miss Anna Rockwell and Mrs. W. F. Henry have kindly opened their beautiful garden to the public from two until six o'clock. This garden is one of the chief beauty spots of the town and is too well known to need further description. There could be no lovelier place to spend a summer afternoon and a cordial welcome is extended to everyone.

Tables for cards will be provided and there will also be plenty of comfortable chairs in shady places for those who merely wish to spend a social hour and meet their friends. Refreshments will be served and a delightful afternoon is anticipated. Prizes for cards will be provided and tables may be reserved by calling 2446, 133 or 925.

A similar garden party given last year was so thoroughly enjoyed by everyone that it was decided to repeat it and all club members are urged to attend and bring their friends.

RYDER CUPPERS MEET SARAZEN'S GOLFERS TODAY

Detroit, July 16.—(P)—Golf-dom's biggest names match strokes over Oakland Hills' rolling course today as a climax to a war of words between Walter Hagen's Ryder Cup team and Gene Sarazen's challengers.

From the halcyon match that grew out of an argument at last month's Inverness invitational tournament at Toledo, O., the Red Cross hopes to realize $25,000 for its war relief fund.

Sarazen found fault—and still does—with the United States Golf Association's choice of Ryder Cuppers.

Ryder Cup Captain Hagen disagreed. Sarazen offered to pick a team that would sweep the Ryder Cuppers off the course—any course and Hagen accepted.

But the individual match between the two team captains is off—temporarily at least—because of Sarazen's insistence upon adhering to Ryder Cup rules.

"My team came here to play the Ryder Cup team," Sarazen explained. "Under cup rules, Hagen is a non-playing captain and can get into competition only in case of emergency. As far as I can see, no emergency exists, so the match is off."

Today's matches—four Scotch foursomes—pair these Ryder Cup players and challengers:

Ralph Guldahl and Slammin' Sammy Sneed vs. Johnny Demaret and Ben Hogan.

Henry Picard and Dick Metz vs. Ed Oliver and Harry Cooper.

Byron Nelson and Harold (Jug) McSpaden vs. Tommy Armour and Jimmy Thomson.

Horton Smith and Paul Runyan vs. Craig Wood and Billie Burke.

Cincinnati won another one run verdict, their fourth in six games, 3-2 over the Phillies and lengthened their margin over the second place Brooklyn Dodgers to three full games.

Bucky Walters held the tail-enders to five hits in acquiring his 13th victory of the year.

The Dodgers divided a double-header at Pittsburgh, winning the first 10-1 and losing the second 4-2. Whitlow Wyatt spaced ten hits effectively and hit a home run, a double and a single toward the Brooklyn total of 17 safeties in the first game.

The Pirates pounced on Tot Pressnell for four runs in the second and third frames of the nightcap and held on to win as Bob Klingner kept ten hits scattered.

The New York Giants dropped a 5-3 game to the Chicago Cubs.

The St. Louis Cardinals massacred the Boston Bees 12-2 with a 20-hit bombardment.

Be not too dismayed. While it is somewhat disappointing to see the Russell Field project again delayed, there is every evidence that the majority of the members of the school board intend to see that something permanent and useful is constructed—even though it may take a little longer than anticipated. We believe that the good judgment of the majority will prevail and that Russell Field will eventually be enclosed with a sturdy barrier that will confound the peckers as well as the climbers. All we need have now is a little patience.

When the bids were opened and it was revealed that the cost of a sheet metal fence was considerably higher than anticipated and that a combination sheet and link fence, which many favor, was hardly less expensive, we were afraid that the Beatty Field Boosters Association would take advantage of this opening to scuttle back to the marshes. The feeling of the majority, however, was that nothing permanently useful can be done at Beatty and that the best bet was to do as much as possible at Russell Field now and add to it as funds are available. That, of course, has long been the purpose, but the groundwork will not be as extensive as was first believed.

"As much as possible" means approximately the $5,000 which is available at the present for such a purpose—the sum allocated for improvements. It is entirely possible that three sides will be enclosed—west, south and east—with a very fine, attractive sheet metal fence, augmented on the north by snow fence and canvas. Perhaps only two sides will be fenced (and this is all on the "fats"), but at least there will be something permanent, to which improvements can be added next year and in the ensuing years. The picture is not nearly as dark as it may at first appear. The dough just isn't there and there isn't any use trying to drill where it ain't. If it means getting a real barrier instead of this evergreen and dewdrop business, we can wait.

Tonight the National Forge starts its campaign for the state semi-professional championship at Vandergrift and local fans will be watching the Forge progress, if any, with keen interest. The Wolfmen got some pretty tough breaks this year, but even without Gagliardi, Hines and Hajnik they are a pretty dangerous ball club. Pinky Caffrey will do them a lot of good when he's right. It's too bad he couldn't have hooked up with the Dazzler and Freddy, with Wise and Kulick in there to help out. The Oil City flinger, who has been pitching for Titusville, is just wild enough to keep the hitters loose, but he can find the plate all right when the chips are down, and he has all of the angles in his salary hook.

The Vandergrift Redbirds, defending state champions, got off to a good start in the third annual Pennsylvania semi-pro baseball tournament by beating the Cecil Athletic Club of Washington county 12-5 last night.

The two other results: North Apollo 8, New Freedom 3; New Kensington 6, Pittsburgh Monarchs 2 (five innings, rain).

Tonight's pairings: Turtle Creek vs. East Butler; Warren, O., vs. Ford City; Irvine vs. Brackenridge.

Seventeen teams, largely from western Pennsylvania, are competing.

The Irvine Rifle Club marksmen lost a close one to Titusville here yesterday, the Queen City sharpshooters, led by G. Patterson and B. Patterson with 399 and 398, winning 1964 to 1961.

Sheridan Brown with 396 was high for Irvine.

Titusville: G. Patterson 399, B. Patterson 398, Knapp 391, C. Patterson 389, D. Patterson 387, Irvine: Brown 396, R. Lacy 392, Schultz 392, Mrs. Lacy 391, Requer 390.

Vandergrift, Pa., July 16.—(P)—The Vandergrift Redbirds, defending state champions, got off to a good start in the third annual Pennsylvania semi-pro baseball tournament by beating the Cecil Athletic Club of Washington county 12-5 last night.

The two other results: North Apollo 8, New Freedom 3; New Kensington 6, Pittsburgh Monarchs 2 (five innings, rain).

Tonight's pairings: Turtle Creek vs. East Butler; Warren, O., vs. Ford City; Irvine vs. Brackenridge.

Seventeen teams, largely from western Pennsylvania, are competing.

The Irvine Rifle Club marksmen lost a close one to Titusville here yesterday, the Queen City sharpshooters, led by G. Patterson and B. Patterson with 399 and 398, winning 1964 to 1961.

Sheridan Brown with 396 was high for Irvine.

Titusville: G. Patterson 399, B. Patterson 398, Knapp 391, C. Patterson 389, D. Patterson 387, Irvine: Brown 396, R. Lacy 392, Schultz 392, Mrs. Lacy 391, Requer 390.

WILLIE TURNESA drives a long ball for a simon-pure, and Frank Strafaci isn't exactly short, but Hogan noticed that their tee shots in the Metropolitan Amateur, over the Century Country Club course, stopped only a few paces beyond the 200-yard markers on several holes.

Hogan doubts that Turnesa averaged 220 yards, despite an occasional 250-yard drive. He battled a head wind on half the holes, and roller-coaster fairways, heavy from frequent rains, smothered distance. Some hit a much longer ball than others, of course, but even the well-built Jimmy Thomson must couple a stiff wind and a hard, down-sloping fairway with his might to hit a golf ball 300 yards.

Season Dates, Limits Are Announced Today By Game Commission

Harrisburg, July 16.—(P)—The blitzkrieg against Pennsylvania's wild life—already under way—will start in earnest November 1, when gunners may let fly against small game, and reach an armistice December 14, with the end of a two-week deer season.

The war of the woods began July 1 with a three-month open season on groundhogs.

The game commission set these other dates and limits for the various kinds of game:

November 1 to November 30—small game—ruff grouse, two a day, 10 a season; bobwhite quail, five a day, 15 a season; ringneck pheasants (male only), two a day, 12 a season; rabbits, four a day, 20 a season; gray, black or fox squirrels, six a day of the combined species, 20 a season; and grackles (blackbirds) unlimited.

Hungarian partridges may be killed only in Lycoming, Montour or Northumberland counties, with two a day and six a season as limits.

A closed season has been ordered on wild turkey in Cameron, Elk, Clarion, Forest, Jefferson, McKean, Potter and Warren counties; in other counties, however, each hunter may kill one wild turkey during the entire season.

There may be no shooting, anywhere, of chukar partridges, sharp-tailed grouse, doves, varying hares or snowshoe rabbits; but there is a year-round, unlimited season on red squirrels.

November 1 to December 31—raccoons—open season in all counties, with a daily limit of one, and season limit of 15 by individual or hunting party.

November 18 to 21—bear—only those over one year old, with a season limit of one to a party of five or more hunters. These counties are closed for bear hunting: Adams, Bedford, Blair, Cumberland, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Juniata, Mifflin and Perry.

December 2 to 14—deer—hunting permitted in all counties for both does and bucks except those with only a visible spike antler or antlers without points.

Unlimited trapping of minks is permitted from November 1 to January 31, and muskrats from December 1 to 31. Opossums and skunks are unprotected by law until September 30, 1941.

Others may be taken by traps only in Lackawanna, Monroe, Pike, Susquehanna, Wayne and Wyoming counties, with four as a season limit from November 1 to January 31.

Raccoons may be trapped from November 1 to December 31, with 15 the season limit, and 21 counties closed.

The beaver trapping season will be March 11 to March 15, 1941, a season limit of three, with 21 counties closed.

Summer hunting hours are 6 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. No shooting will be allowed until 9 a. m. on the opening of the small game season; thereafter, daily gunning hours are 7 a. m. to 5 p. m.

RYDER CUPPERS MEET SARAZEN'S GOLFERS TODAY

Detroit, July 16.—(P)—Golf-don's biggest names match strokes over Oakland Hills' rolling course today as a climax to a war of words between Walter Hagen's Ryder Cup team and Gene Sarazen's challengers.

From the ballyhooed match that grew out of an argument at last month's Inverness invitational tournament at Toledo, O., the Red Cross hopes to realize $23,000 for its war relief fund.

Sarazen found fault—and still does—with the United States Golf Association's choice of Ryder Cuppers.

Ryder Cup Captain Hagen disagreed. Sarazen offered to pick a team that would sweep the Ryder Cuppers off the course—any course—and Hagen accepted.

But the individual match between the two team captains is off—temporarily at least—because of Sarazen's insistence upon adhering to Ryder cup rules.

"My team came here to play the Ryder Cup team," Sarazen explained. "Under cup rules, Hagen is a non playing captain and can get into competition only in case of emergency. As far as I can see, no emergency exists, so the match is off."

Today's matches—four Scotch foursomes—pair these Ryder Cup players and challengers:

Ralph Guldahl and Slammin' Sammy Snead vs. Johnny Demaret and Ben Hogan.

Henry Picard and Dick Metz vs. Ed Oliver and Harry Cooper.

Byron Nelson and Harold (Jug) McSpaden vs. Tommy Armour and Jimmy Thomson.

Horton Smith and Paul Runyan vs. Craig Wood and Billie Burke.

TALBOT PICKS ARMSTRONG TO WHIP JENKINS

By GALE TALBOT
New York, July 16.—(P)—At the risk of being disbarred from the local chapter of the ex-Texans Association, I'm afraid Lew Jenkins is due to take a bad beating from Henry Armstrong tomorrow night at the Polo Grounds.

The reason is that Jenkins, though he fought his way to the lightweight championship in a sensational manner, has not up to now been called upon to show that he can take a hard punching around the body. Not the kind, anyway, that Armstrong hands out.

The lean Texan is up against one of the greatest little fighters the game ever saw, champion of the weight division above Jenkins' and the spoiler of many a pugilist's hope. The negro is a better, remorseless fighter who can take a punch or a dozen punches and continue to come on.

Jenkins' backers are counting on a knockout. They hope that Lew can connect with a couple of those terrific swipes of his and flatten Armstrong before the negro gets in his really destructive work. It is doubtful that even Lew's best friend thinks he can win a decision over the dreamy little negro in 12 rounds.

The gamblers have had Armstrong's favorite all along, and their odds against Jenkins are likely to be a solid 2 to 1 before the two enter the ring. Of course, they also made Ambers a favorite over the Pride of the Prairies and took a shellacking, but this will be different, they hope.

RUPPERT REGIME OF YANKEES NEARS END

Chicago, July 16.—(P)—It's rather common knowledge now that the prosperous Ruppert regime of the New York Yankees is at an end.

The new owners of the club, likely a syndicate headed by Postmaster General James A. Farley, will have quite a task if they expect to match the record of the late Jacob Ruppert.

The Colonel, who died in January 1939 at the age of 71, became sole owner of the Yanks in 1923. They won the pennant that year and captured eight other flags while the wealthy brewer was alive.

Farley, however, is not a newcomer to the sports field. He has behind him a distinguished record as chairman of the New York Boxing Commission from which he progressed into an equally brilliant career as a political strategist.

SPORT SCATTERINGS

Be not too dismayed. While it is somewhat disappointing to see the Russell Field project again delayed, there is every evidence that the majority of the members of the school board intend to see that something permanent and useful is constructed—even though it may take a little longer than anticipated. We believe that the good judgment of the majority will prevail and that Russell Field will eventually be enclosed with a sturdy barrier that will confound the peckers as well as the climbers. All we need have now is a little patience.

When the bids were opened and it was revealed that the cost of a sheet metal fence was considerably higher than anticipated and that a combination sheet and link fence, which many favor, was hardly less expensive, we were afraid that the Beauty Field Boosters Association would take advantage of this opening to scuttle back to the marshes. The feeling of the majority, however, was that nothing permanently augmented on the north by snow fence and canvas. Perhaps only two sides will be fenced (and this is all on the "flats"), but at least there will be something permanent, to which improvements can be added next year and in the ensuing years. The picture is not nearly as dark as it may at first appear. The dough just isn't there and there isn't any use trying to drill where it ain't. If it means getting a real barrier instead of this evergreen and dewdrop business, we can wait.

"As much as possible" means approximately the $5,000 which is available at the present for such a purpose—the sum allocated for improvements. It is entirely possible that three sides will be enclosed—west, south and east—with a very fine, attractive sheet metal fence, augmented on the north by snow fence and canvas. Perhaps only two sides will be fenced (and this is all on the "flats"), but at least there will be something permanent, to which improvements can be added next year and in the ensuing years. The picture is not nearly as dark as it may at first appear. The dough just isn't there and there isn't any use trying to drill where it ain't. If it means getting a real barrier instead of this evergreen and dewdrop business, we can wait.

Tonight the National Forge starts its campaign for the state semi-pro championship at Vandegrift and local fans will be watching the Forgers' progress with keen interest. The Wolfemen got some pretty tough breaks this year, but even without Gagliardi, Hines and Hajjine, they are a pretty dangerous ball club. Pinky Caffrey will do a lot of good when he's right. It's too bad he couldn't have hooked up with the Dazzler and Freddy, with Wise and Kulick in there to help out. The Oil City flogger, who has been pitching for Titusville, is just wild enough to keep the hitters loose, but he can find the plate all right when the chips are down, and he has all of the angles in his salary hook.

Crayon's SCOREBOARD

Drive in Golf as Exaggerated as Fish Stories;
A 280-Yard Smack Will Win Most Any Contest;
Hogan Averages 240 Under Perfect Conditions

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Staff Editor

LONG drives in golf are grossly exaggerated. Ben Hogan is famous for his hitting, despite the fact he weighs no more than 140 pounds, but the tapping Texan tells you he can't average 240 yards unless the fairways are baked hard and most of them run downhill.

A 280-yard smack will win most any driving contest even though such events are usually staged under favorable conditions.

From an elevated tee at the Pittsburgh Field Club in 1938, Jimmy Thomson, daddy of hitters, manufactured a 317-yard drive in a distance contest preceding the P. G. A. tournament, but it hooked off the fairway and didn't count.

SAMUEL JACKSON SNEAD and Lawson Little may be outdistanced by Thomson off the tee, but Hogan considers them longer than the Scotsman on full wood wallop from the fairway. All three were aided by a brisk following wind when they banged 300-yard drives in the National Open at Cleveland's Canterbury, but, as Hogan points out, Little's tremendous second shot proved decisive.

Hogan is the only golfer who has scored a field goal with a golf ball. He socked a drive 264 yards from a tee built high up on a lamp ball. The lofty walls of the stadium served as a windbreak, yet that was as far as he could hit the ball in three attempts.

WILLIE TURNESA drives a long ball for a simon-pure, and Frank Strafaci isn't exactly short, but Hogan noticed that their tee shots in the Metropolitan Amateur, over the Century County Club course, stopped only a few paces beyond the 200-yard markers on several holes.

Hogan doubts that Turnesa averaged 220 yards, despite an occasional 250-yard drive. He battled a head wind on half the holes, and roller-coaster fairways, heavy from frequent rains, smothered distance. Some hit a much longer ball than others, of course, but even the well-built Jimmy Thomson must couple a golf ball 200 yards.

UNCLE SAM IS ALOOF AT MEDIATION MOVE

Washington, July 16.—(P)—Aloof, though sympathetic, the government today observed British efforts to bring to a close the three years' long conflict between Japan and China.

At the same time, on the Pacific scene, 12 cruisers and a sizeable number of destroyers of the United States battle fleet steamed away from their Pearl Harbor anchorages.

The Navy Department remained silent as to the purpose of the movement. There was speculation in Hawaii, however, that the war vessels may patrol British and French islands in the South Pacific.

(From Page One)
Intended only to lighten Germany's attempted "starvation blockade" and to weaken resistance by destroying airdromes, arms plants and docks.

The daily German raids on Britain tapered off sharply. Planes were sighted over northeast England but no bombs were dropped and a lone raider was believed shot down off the southeast coast.

The British for their part appeared to be striking at Germany. A dozen or more radio stations in Germany and German-held territory today, indicating that British planes were in the neighborhood, although no announcements were made at the time.

Britain was believed to have laid new mine fields in waters around Italian territory in the Mediterranean. The Admiralty warned vessels that if they should venture within 30 miles of Italian territory in the Mediterranean they would do so "at their own risk and peril."

Belated reports of the big Italian-British naval battle in the Mediterranean on July 9 came from both sides today, giving new details.

A communiqué by the commander-in-chief of the British fleet said at least 20 Italian bombing planes were shot down in the action.

The Italian high command reported three direct bomb hits on the 42,100-ton British battle cruiser Hood, world's largest warship, and one hit on the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal. Previous unofficial Italian claims to this effect have been officially denied by the British Admiralty.

The Italian communiqué also reported huge fires set at Haifa, British oil port in Palestine, through direct hits by Italian bombers on oil refineries and depots yesterday.

ready to strike when Adolf Hitler gives the word.

These assertions coincided with predictions in Rome that within the next few days Britain would be given a last chance to line up with the Axis powers in their plans for "renovating" Europe or face assault and "final overthrow."

An ultimatum to that effect will be forthcoming shortly, the authoritative Fascist editor Virginio Gayda hinted.

Official circles here remained tight-lipped concerning Germany's immediate intentions, but informed sources pointed to Gayda's article as a possible clue to the situation.

The same sources indicated they expected a decision regarding England would be made this week.

Germany's readiness to press for a military decision to end the war with Britain was emphasized by the well-informed Nazi commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland.

"That such a decision is now 'inevitable' has been made obvious," the German press declared, by Prime Minister Churchill's assertion Britain would fight to the bitter end and that he would rather see London in ashes than sue for peace.

It is reported by competent traffic observers that four out of five accidents occur when the pavement is dry and the weather is clear.

The box contains coats and underwear. Anyone finding these articles is requested to communicate with the local department.

POLE IS STRUCK

A Bell Telephone Company pole at the intersection of Seventh and Market streets was split and the fire alarm system temporarily put out of commission last night at 11:25 o'clock when a car driven by Harold R. Munsee skidded on the wet pavement and crashed in to the pole which also carries the street light at that intersection. The lamp fell on the alarm system wire and blew out the fuses at the central board. The car was slightly damaged.

HEARING CONTINUED

The hearing in the case of Commonwealth vs. John E. Barkerman, of this city, charged with relief of this city, was continued for a few days after Justice of the Peace T. Richard Evans heard prosecution testimony this morning. Representatives of the Department of Public Assistance testified that Barkerman had denied having any stocks, bonds or cash when he made application for relief, but that he had been learned that he had $900 worth of negotiable securities during the time he received $541.06 in relief money. When first arraigned, Barkerman pleaded not guilty and demanded a hearing.

Witnesses for the commonwealth were Robert S. Stewart, of Erie, and Mrs. Howard Lauffenberger and Mrs. J. L. Connelly, of the local office.

Upon the recommendation of the committee on teachers Miss Jean Blodgett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Blodgett, of this city, was appointed temporary teacher in the commercial department, succeeding Mrs. Helene W. McClure, who resigned at the close of last term.

The purchase of additional textbooks and instructional material was authorized on recommendation of the committee on textbooks and supplies.

The Klenck Machine Shop was authorized to construct new basketball goals for Beatty gym.

Those present at last night's meeting were President W. M. Clinger, Directors H. M. Mohr, R. W. Keller, W. M. Cashman, R. W. Mackay and N. D. Paterson, Superintendent John G. Rossman, Solicitor Alexander C. Flick and Miss Emma Atkins, clerk.

Pittsburgh, July 16.—(P)—Charles Black, who at 83 puts in a full day at the office as secretary to State Senator Frank J. Harris, makes it a rule never to take hold of the railing while going up or down stairs. He thinks to do so would be a confession he was getting old.

UNCLE SAM IS ALOOF AT MEDIATION MOVE

Washington, July 16.—(P)—Aloof, though sympathetic, the government today observed British efforts to bring to a close the three years' long conflict between Japan and China.

At the same time, on the Pacific scene, 12 cruisers and a sizeable number of destroyers of the United States battle fleet steamed away from their Pearl Harbor anchorages.

The Navy Department remained silent as to the purpose of the movement. There was speculation in Hawaii, however, that the war vessels may patrol British and French islands in the South Pacific.

intended only to tighten Germany's attempted "starvation blockade" and to weaken resistance by destroying airdromes, arms plants and docks.

The daily German raids on Britain tapered off sharply. Planes were sighted over northeast England but no bombs were dropped and a lone raider was believed shot down off the southeast coast.

The British for their part appeared to be striking at Germany. A dozen or more radio stations in Germany and German-held territory fell silent last night and early today, indicating that British planes were in the neighborhood, although no announcements were made at the time.

Britain was believed to have laid new mine fields in waters around Italian territory in the Mediterranean. The Admiralty warned vessels that if they should venture within 30 miles of Italian territory in the Mediterranean they would do so "at their own risk and peril."

Belated reports of the big Italian-British naval battle in the Mediterranean on July 9 came from both sides today, giving new details.

A communique by the command-in-chief of the British fleet said at least 20 Italian bombing planes were shot down in the action.

The Italian high command reported three direct bomb hits on the 42,100-ton British battle cruiser Hood, world's largest warship, and one hit on the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal. Previous unofficial Italian claims to this effect have been officially denied by the British Admiralty.

The Italian communique also reported huge fires set at Haifa, British oil port in Palestine, through direct hits by Italian bombers on oil refineries and depots yesterday.

ready to strike when Adolf Hitler gives the word.

These assertions coincided with predictions in Rome that within the next few days Britain would be given a last chance to line up with the Axis powers in their plans for "renovating" Europe or face assault and "final overthrow."

(An ultimatum to that effect will be forthcoming shortly, the authoritative Fascist editor Virginio Gayda hinted.)

Official circles here remained tight-lipped concerning Germany's immediate intentions, but informants pointed to Gayda's article as a possible clue to the situation.

The same sources indicated they expected a decision regarding England would be made this week.

Germany's readiness to press for a military decision to end the war with Britain was emphasized by the well-informed Nazi commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland.

That such a decision is now "inevitable" has been made obvious, the German press declared, by Prime Minister Churchill's assertion Britain would fight to the bitter end and that he would rather see London in ashes than sue for peace.

It is reported by competent traffic observers that four out of five accidents occur when the pavement is dry and the weather is clear.

When first arraigned, Barkman pleaded not guilty and demanded a hearing. Witnesses for the commonwealth were Robert S. Stewart, of Erie, and Mrs. Howard Lauffenberger and Mrs. J. L. ## MARINE CORPS SEEKS RECRUITS IN LOCAL AREA

Young men of Warren and vicinity who are interested in enlisting in the United States Marine Corps have an opportunity to do so during the next two days when a recruiting party from the Pittsburgh district recruiting office will be at the local post office.

The recruiting officers will be at the civil service room in the post office building here from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. today, Wednesday and Thursday, when they will be pleased to give any desired information concerning enlistment in this branch of the U. S. service. Members of the recruiting party, who arrived last evening from Detroit, are Sgt. Joseph J. Crowley, Sgt. Charles R. Souza and Pharmacist's Mate John C. Cornelison. Young men interested in making application for enlistment in the Marine Corps will be given a preliminary examination and those found physically qualified will be taken to Pittsburgh for final medical examination and enlistment.

Applicants must be between 18 and 30 years of age, between 64 and 74 inches in height, with weight in proportion to age and height. They must be in robust physical condition and must be able to furnish references from three reputable citizens in the community. All applicants under 21 years of age must have the written consent of their parents or legal guardian. The enlistment period in the Marine Corps is four years.

Sgt. Crowley said this morning that the enlistment quota for the Pittsburgh district is 100 men, although an effort is being made to enroll all available men who can meet the qualifications.

Following a three-day stay here, the recruiting party will go to Oil City for a similar period.

Ground school instructor's rating was granted to Marshall Mathis, of the Warren airport, following an examination which he took yesterday in Pittsburgh. The examination was given by Civil Aeronautics Authority Inspector C. A. Goff.

Mathis and Virgil S. King, manager of the local airport, went to Pittsburgh to confer with Goff concerning the Civilian Pilot Training program to be conducted here under the C. A. A. program.

In an examination which kept him busy from 9:45 a. m. to 7 p. m. yesterday, Mathis successfully passed all of the seven subjects required for the C. A. A. ground school instructor's rating. These subjects include air navigation, meteorology, air commerce regulations, aircraft engines, aircraft structure, parachutes, aircraft instruments and aircraft radio.

Mathis is the only C. A. A.-approved ground school instructor in this vicinity. It was stated today.

Both Mathis and King are licensed flight instructors. King said this morning that about 50 young men and young women will take the ground school course, being held under the C. A. A. ## County Agent's News

STAKE TOMATOES OR NOT THAT IS THE QUESTION

Should tomatoes in the home garden be allowed to grow naturally or should they be staked and pruned for best results?

This question is in the minds of many gardeners according to inquiries received by County Agent O. C. Tritt.

In farm gardens where space is available and time is limited, the best procedure for obtaining a good crop with the least work is as follows:

Set the plants at least 4 feet apart, either in a single row or a bed. Practice clean cultivation for about a month until about July 1, and then mulch with straw or other material about the time fruit sets.

The mulch serves best when it covers the ground completely to a depth of 6 or 8 inches when loose and 3 or 4 inches when settled. From this point there will be no labor except picking. Weeds and cultivation will be eliminated. Straw will provide a fine resting place for ripening, and moisture will be conserved during dry periods.

In town gardens where space is scarce, tomatoes may be pruned and tied to stakes. Set the plants 2 feet apart in rows 2 1/2 or 3 feet apart. Provide stakes 5 feet high above the soil surface. Begin pruning about the time the first cluster is in bloom by pinching or cutting off all side branches or suckers that grow from the axil of each leaf (the angle between the leaf and the stem). Tie the main plant to the stake with a soft twine.

Tie the prune each week as often as necessary. Small stakes bored in the stake will help support the heavy plant. The single stem method is preferred to the bush method. The single stem or leader is formed by allowing the side branch or sucker immediately below the first cluster to grow, and pinching all other side branches as the plant grows.

Tomatoes pruned to a single stem produce about 5 to 7 clusters of tomatoes while those pruned to two stems produce 11 or 12 clusters.

Yield per plant is greatest when the plants are not pruned, but some tomatoes are grown in a small area by pruning and staking although three or four times as many plants are used.

The method to use, therefore, depends upon conditions.

Wadlow Taken Back Home in Specially Built Steel Coffin

Manistee, Mich., July 16.—(AP)—In a steel coffin, 10 feet, 6 inches long the body of Robert Pershing Wadlow went back to Alton, Ill., today.

Like everything Wadlow wore and the furniture at his home in Alton, the coffin was made to order.

It had to be, for in it will rest the body of a man who at 22 years of age was 8 feet 10.3 inches tall and weighed 491 pounds.

Wadlow died here Monday of a foot injury he received July 4 while appearing professionally at the National Forest Festival as "The world's tallest man."

He wore No. 39 shoes, which cost $86 a pair. A suit required nine yards of cloth. His bed and chair at home and his desk at the Alton high school were built to fit him.

Scientists said an over-active pituitary gland at the base of his brain caused Wadlow to become the tallest man in the history of medicine. He was considered normal in other respects.

Harold F. Wadlow, his father and manager, said funeral services would be held at the Streper Mortuary in Alton. An uncle of the young giant, Cecil Wadlow, Lincoln, Neb., mortician, is making funeral arrangements.

The fire department was called to the vicinity of the Buick garage, Pennsylvania avenue, west, about noon yesterday to take measures to prevent possible fire after oil had been spilled on the pavement from a crude oil tank truck. Sand was spread over the oil to prevent it from catching fire from a match or cigarette which might have been tossed to the street.

SEEK IMMUNITY FROM DISEASES

BY PAUL BRAUNSCHEWEIGER

Year by year medical science adds to the list of human ailments which may be avoided by the use of serums.

The terrific toll once taken by smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid, has been reduced to a minimum. Whooping cough, scarlet fever, even croup may be avoided. A mother now seeks immunity from disease as her child's natural birthright, which it is.

Vacation months are an excellent time of the year for immunization. Consult your physician for advice on this point.

Pure serums are all important. A good druggist provides them, quickly, at minimum expense.

STAKE TOMATOES OR NOT
THAT IS THE QUESTION

Should tomatoes in the home garden be allowed to grow naturally or should they be staked and pruned for best results?

This question is in the minds of many gardeners according to inquiries received by County Agent O. C. Tritt.

In farm gardens where space is available and time is limited, the best procedure for obtaining a good crop with the least work is as follows:

Set the plants at least 4 feet apart, either in a single row or a bed. Practice clean cultivation for about a month until about July 1, and then mulch with straw or other material about the time fruit sets.

The mulch serves best when it covers the ground completely to a depth of 6 or 8 inches when loose and 3 or 4 inches when settled. From this point there will

ALLEY OOP

Just as Jon Figured

By V. T. HAMLIN

he no labor except picking. Weeds and cultivation will be eliminated. Straw will provide a fine resting place for ripening, and moisture will be conserved during dry periods.

In town gardens where space is scarce, tomatoes may be pruned and tied to stakes. Set the plants 2 feet apart in rows 2 1/2 or 3 feet apart. Provide stakes 5 feet high above the soil surface. Begin pruning about the time the first cluster is in bloom by pinching or cutting out all side branches or suckers that grow from the axil of each leaf (the angle between the leaf and the stem). Tie the main plant to the stake with a soft twine.

Tie the prune each week or as often as necessary. Small holes bored in the stake will help support the heavy plant. The two-stem method is preferred to the single stem method. The second stem or leader is formed by allowing the side branch or sucker immediately below the first blossom cluster to grow, and removing all other side branches as the plant grows.

Tomatoes pruned to a single stem produce about 6 to 7 clusters of tomatoes while those pruned to two stems produce 11 or 12 clusters.

Yield per plant is greatest when the plants are not pruned, but more tomatoes are grown on a small area by pruning and staking although three or four times as many plants are used.

The method to use, therefore, depends upon conditions.

Wadlow Taken Back Home in Specially Built Steel Coffin

Manistee, Mich., July 16.—(AP)—In a steel coffin, 10 feet, 6 inches long the body of Robert Pershing Wadlow went back to Alton, Ill., today.

Like everything Wadlow wore and the furniture at his home in Alton, the coffin was made to order.

It had to be, for in it will rest the body of a man who at 22 years of age was 8 feet 10.3 inches tall and weighed 491 pounds.

Wadlow died here Monday of a foot injury he received July 4 while appearing professionally at the National Forest Festival as "the world's tallest man."

He wore No. 39 shoes, which cost $86 a pair. A suit required nine yards of cloth. His bed and chair at home and his desk at the Alton high school were built to fit him.

Scientists said an over-active pituitary gland at the base of his brain caused Wadlow to become the tallest man in the history of medicine. He was considered normal in other respects.

Harold F. Wadlow, his father and manager, said funeral services would be held at the Streper Mortuary in Alton. An uncle of the young giant, Cecil Wadlow, Lincoln, Neb., mortician, is making funeral arrangements.
